Trieste Knows
A Lot of War

It is only a short and pleasant drive from Trieste, Free State, about which Tito now fills the air with threats, and where the Italian nationalism is smoking hot, to Udine and Caporetto, both on the border, the former Italian, the latter Yugoslavian.

And this month—October, of harvest and fiesta—is the anniversary of the beginning of a battle plan which succeeded so well that it reaches down into our time and helps explain why the anti-Stalinist Communist Tito of Yugoslavia fills the air with threats.

In October, 1917, the Russian front had collapsed and German troops were sent hurriedly to Italy where the Italians held Alpine positions above and beyond Caporetto and Udine and threatened Trieste.

There, however, all was not well. Certain munition plants had experienced revolts by the workers. The virus of the Russian revolution already was in their veins. As punishment, thousands of these and other suspected malingers were, through some fantastically erroneous reasoning, sent to the then relatively quiet section about Caporetto.

Route
The German intelligence was well informed of this mutinous spirit among the Italian troops. It was so bad many officers properly feared for their lives and locked themselves up by night. General Ludendorff began his campaign by infiltration through the Italian lines near Caporetto and Udine.

There were many brave and skilled Italian regiments which fought well and held up the attack. Mountain fighting always is slow. But the Germans capitalized on the Italian disaffection, and their agents fomented it until some regiments surrendered wholesale. In late November and early December the defense rapidly became a rout. There were Italian units which killed their officers. The German slaughter of the panicked, fleeing troops was horrible and thorough.

The rout was a hog-killing in which the great courage of many elements was lost in the treason and wholesale surrender and desertion of others. To this day "Caporetto" is a fighting word in Italy. And, for years after the First World War, fights stirred the Alpine villages whenever some visitor sneeringly slurred the Italians with the phrase shouted by the mutinous troops in the Caporetto disaster: "Andiamo a casa" (We are going home).

Yugoslavia
The city of Trieste belonged to the old Austro-Hungarian empire, and the area of modern Yugoslavia, carved out of that crumpled kingdom by the Versailles Treaty as one of the Democratic hopes of that time, was also taken from the dead body of the monarchy. That's why Tito now lays claim to Trieste.

After the Second World War an area of 320 square miles was made a free territory, and United Nations troops kept it so. Yugoslavia's turn to communism and an early alliance with Stalin, now broken, complicated the administration. The proposal now to turn the British and American zones over to Italians has Tito rattling his sabre.

History and economics make people what they are. Yugoslavia and the territory of the old "Balkans" are traditionally restive. The Turks were there more than 500 years. The Serbs resisted most. The Turk never really made himself effective in Croatia or Slovenia, and the Serbs say those people were "appeasers." They are all Slavs, but the chief religions are Greek Orthodox and Moslem. In the First World War the old culture and spirit sent the Serbs to the side of the Allies, and the Croats and Slovenes to the Austrians. The Serbs endured terrible punishment from the Kaiser's Germans, and when the war ended the Serbs dominated the new country of Yugoslavia. They had no special liking for the Croats and Slovenes—and do not yet have such a liking.

In the Second World War civil war rent the nation, with the Serbs against leading resistance to the Germans. Tito, an old Communist, won out with Soviet help. Then he broke with the Kremlin. Now we are at another crisis.

Democrats' Burke Gets Taft's Seat

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Oct. 12.—Gov. Lausche appointed Mayor Thomas A. Burke, Democrat, of Cleveland as United States senator from Ohio today to succeed the late Sen. Taft.

The appointment of Burke, who will be 55 years old Oct. 30, will give the Democrats 48 seats in the Senate to 47 for the Republicans and one independent.

However, in announcing the appointment, Gov. Lausche indicated Burke will not vote to upset the Republican control of the Senate.

INTEREST OF ALL

"I anticipate that he (Burke) will take no action upsetting the present organization of the Senate and that he will constantly have in mind the interests and welfare of all the people," the governor said.

Gov. Lausche announced the appointment in his usual unorthodox manner. He was enroute from Columbus to Cleveland to attend a Columbus Day banquet.

The announcement was made by his personal secretary, Miss Celie M. Jirsa, in Columbus.

HEARING EYE

The Democratic governor made the announcement on the eve of a scheduled hearing in the Ohio Supreme Court for a writ of mandamus to compel Gov. Lausche to make an announcement forthwith.

Governor Lausche, since Sen. Taft's death July 31 in New York, had insisted there was no reason to make an immediate appointment because the Senate was not in session.

Burke will serve until Dec. 15, 1954. There will be an election in November, 1954, to select the man who will serve the two years remaining in Sen. Taft's term.

U.S. Supreme Court Upholds Ruling Killing Georgia's Fair Trade Law

Legislative plans for a substitute fair trade act were under way last night, after the U. S. Supreme Court had, in effect, upheld the Georgia Supreme Court's decision killing the 1952 Georgia fair trade law.

The U. S. Supreme Court refused to hear an appeal by Supreme Court Roundup, Page 2.

Hall admitted to the FBI he killed the boy by firing a pistol bullet into the right side of his head after driving him across the Missouri-Kansas state line from Kansas City a short time after Bobby's kidnaping.

Mrs. Bonnie Brown Heady, 41-year-old alcoholic, confessed she was with Hall when he killed the boy, son of multi-millionaire parents who paid a record $600,000 in ransom.

CROSSED STATE LINE

With the couple's signed confessions that the child was taken across a state line, the government immediately filed charges at Kansas City under the Lindbergh Kidnap Law.

The confessions today cleared Thomas John Marsh, 37, tattooed ex-convict named earlier by Hall as the actual killer of Bobby, of any part in the crime.

The admissions also wiped out the Heady woman's earlier claim she was merely an innocent pawn in the case when she led the unsuspecting child from an exclusive Catholic school Sept. 28 on the pretext she was his aunt. She insisted she thought the boy was Hall's son, in custody of an ex-wife.

FEDERAL COURT

The 34-year-old Hall, ne'er-do-well son of a respected Kansas family, and his partner in the crime that has shocked the nation were expected to go to trial on the kidnaping charge before a federal court jury in Kansas City.

The Lindbergh law, which stemmed from the kidnap-slaying of the famous aviator's son 21 years ago, carries a maximum penalty of death when the kidnap victim is harmed.

The boy's body, decomposing under a layer of lime which Hall admitted buying before the kidnaping, was unearthed in the backyard of Mrs. Heady's home in St. Joseph, Mo., Wednesday, soon

Dewey Aide Defies Order To Quit Post

ALBANY, N.Y., Oct. 12.—Gov. Dewey told his acting lieutenant governor, Arthur H. Wicks, to resign today because he had visited a convicted labor racketeer in Sing Sing prison, but Wicks defied the governor and refused.

Dewey told Wicks, second ranking official in New York State, that he "thoroughly disapproved" of Wicks' visit to Joe Fay in Sing Sing. Wicks has said he visited Fay only to prevent labor trouble in his home district, but Dewey said no state official should visit any criminal except in the course of official duties.

Under the law, Dewey has no power to fire Wicks. Wicks knew that and told Dewey so.

Wicks became acting lieutenant governor Sept. 30 when Frank C. Moore resigned. Wicks is Senate majority leader and the law provides that the majority leader automatically becomes acting lieutenant governor in such a case.

Wicks said it is up to the Senate to decide if he should remain on the job.

Dewey told reporters he had "an extended conversation" today with Wicks.

Greece Inks Pact Giving U.S. Bases

By HAROLD B. HINTON
New York Times News Service
Special to The Atlanta Constitution

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The State Department announced today signing of an agreement with Greece giving the United States joint use of an undisclosed number of air and naval bases, as well as the right to station and house military personnel in Greece, under provisions of the North Atlantic treaty.

The announcement was made simultaneously in Athens, where the agreement was signed for the United States by Ambassador Cavendish Cannon.

OTHER AGREEMENTS

Similar formal agreements have been announced with Iceland concerning the airfield at Keflavik, with Denmark over air bases in Greenland, and with Portugal permitting use of air bases in the Azores. United States forces enjoy similar privileges in Britain, France and elsewhere in the world, but agreements with those nations have not been made public.

Asked why the Greek compact was formally announced, a State department spokesman made the following explanation:

From the point of view of the United States, the step is considered to be an executive agreement, not requiring ratification by the Senate. The Greek government, however, intends to submit the matter to its parliament, which will occasion public debate, and the solution seemed to be a simultaneous announcement in both capitals.

STRENGTHENS SECURITY

The preamble of the agreement sets forth that it is concluded "in fulfillment of their mutual responsibilities under Article III of the North Atlantic treaty."

"The agreement is designed to strengthen security in the North Atlantic treaty area," the State department announcement said, "as well as maintain international peace and security by facilitating the integration of Greek defenses, developed over the past five years with American aid, into the NATO defense system."

It was said at the State department that existing Greek naval bases are already included in the so-called "infrastructure" of NATO, meaning the complex of common-use facilities provided by the treaty signatories, and may be used by other than U. S. naval forces. The air bases, however, are thus far to be shared only with the U. S. Air Force.

Soviets Charge Trieste Action Sets Up Illegal Military Base; Tito Calls for 4-Nation Parley

Note to U.N. Amplifies Arms Threat

By JACK RAYMOND

New York Times News Service

BELGRADE, Oct. 12.—Yugoslavia proposed today a conference with the United States, Britain and Italy on the Trieste issue and notified the United Nations of her determination to repel any Italian attempt to send troops to Zone A of the Free Territory of Trieste.

Dr. Ales Bebler, state undersecretary for foreign affairs, called in representatives of the United States, Britain and Italy and handed them a note requesting an immediate four-nation conference. The stated purpose of the conference was to avoid any action that might place the Trieste dispute on the agenda of the U. N. Security Council.

CABLE TO U. N.

In an urgent cabled communication to U. N. Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld, the Yugoslav government invoked Article 51 of the U. N. Charter serving notice of its intention to keep Italian troops out of Zone A.

Article 51 in the charter, headed "Action with respect to threats to the peace, breaches of the peace, and acts of aggression," gives member nations the right to take action in self-defense against any armed attack until the Security Council has taken measures to maintain peace and security.

"SITUATION URGENT"

The situation is urgent, the note to the Western powers stressed. It added that a conference would be "pointless" if the United States and Britain persisted in carrying out their decision to turn Zone A over to Italy before representatives of the four powers could meet.

These diplomatic maneuvers to delay implementation of the American-British decision were made as the Yugoslavs gave further notice of their decision.

3 Car Theft Ring Suspects' Bail $15,000

Three men were ordered held yesterday under $5,000 bond each for the Fulton County grand jury in connection with what police described as a gigantic auto theft ring operating from a farm home near Palmetto.

Detectives H. W. Reed and P. H. Beasley identified the three as George Griffin, 27, and Junior Lee Jones, 22, both mechanics of near Palmetto, and Felix M. Jordan, 55, of Rte. 3, Austell, a used-car dealer.

The three were charged specifically with three counts of auto larceny, the detectives said. However, they added federal officers and agents of the Automobile Underwriters Assn. have located more than 50 cars with altered motor numbers.

Several more persons are being sought, officers said.

Reed and Beasley said a complete set of mechanical equipment used in altering motor numbers was found in a farmhouse eight miles west of Palmetto. They described altered motor numbers on automobiles already recovered as "perfect—good enough to fool anyone."

Griffin and Jones, both formerly of Ellijay, are charged with altering the numbers, detectives said, and Jordan is charged with disposing of the cars.

Griffin and Jordan have police records, the detectives said. The three waived preliminary hearing before Judge A. W. Calhoun.

U.S. Agrees To Meet at Panmunjom

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The United States and its 16 Korean War allies tonight offered to meet with Communist representatives at Panmunjom Oct. 26 to agree on a time and place for a Korean peace conference.

A formal note to the Chinese Communist government said the representatives would discuss the makeup of the peace conference only "to the extent consistent" with a U. N. Assembly decision barring neutrals.

The U. N. stand appeared to rule out Communist demands that India, Indonesia, Burma, Pakistan and Russia be given seats at the conference table as "neutrals."

DETAILS OF NOTE

The note said: "The United States, after consultations with the other governments participating on our side, has authorized its representatives to agree on a time and place for a conference and to exchange views looking toward early agreement on procedural, administrative and related questions as to arrangements which it might be appropriate to discuss before the conference begins."

In the "preceding paragraphs" of its message, transmitted through the Swedish government, the U. N. side recalled that paragraph 60 of the armistice agreement limited conference roles to "the governments concerned on both sides."

ANSWER TO REDS

The message recalled that it was the Communists themselves who insisted upon this type of conference, and, in effect, accepted the U. N. position.

Edict Breaks Italian Pact, Russia Says

By KENNETH BRODNEY

MOSCOW, Oct. 12.—Russia accused the United States and Great Britain today of transforming Trieste into an illegal military base and of violating the Italian peace treaty.

The Soviet charges were made in formal and identical notes to the two nations protesting against their decision to turn Zone A of the Trieste territory over to Italy.

The notes said the treaty violation "has been revealed by the transformation of Trieste into an illegal Anglo-American army and navy base to which an important role in the military plan of the aggressive North Atlantic bloc has been assigned."

WEST ACCUSED

The notes were handed to the American and British embassies here today.

They accused the Western nations of causing friction between Italy and Yugoslavia and threatening the peace and security of that part of Europe through their decision to give Zone A to Italy.

It accused the two countries of failing to live up to their obligations assumed in their signing of the Italian pact.

Their failure, the Soviets said, was revealed by the fact that "the United States and British governments rejected all candidates for the post of governor of Trieste as suggested by the United Nations Security Council, despite the lack of grounds for so doing."

ANNOUNCEMENT QUOTED

The notes quoted the Anglo-American announcement of the Trieste decision last week as saying it was taken because of the impossibility of reaching agreement with other states on setting up a permanent regime in Trieste.

"The fact of the position of the United States and United Kingdom in the Security Council during the discussion over appointing a governor for the Free Territory of Trieste shows that it is actually the United States and United Kingdom which violated and are violating the Italian peace treaty regarding the establishment of the Free Territory of Trieste," the notes said.

Fair and Cooler Weather Stated

The Atlanta Weather Bureau predicts fair skies and cooler temperatures for Atlanta and North Georgia today and tomorrow.

Today's temperatures are expected to range between 56 and 76 degrees. The mercury is expected to drop to a low of 50 degrees tomorrow morning and climb to a high of 76 degrees during the day. Yesterday's temperature extremes were 58 and 85 degrees.

500 Searchers Find Boy in Woods 6 Hours

Showing no trace of fright, 6-year-old Lanier Pitts greeted rescuers with a nonchalant "I'm lost" when he was found last night in a densely wooded area a mile from his home, ending a six-hour search in which more than 500 persons participated.

Lanier appeared none the worse for wear, and explained simply that he had "gone for a walk with my two pet dogs."

The boy, son of Marvin Pitts, an Atlanta trolley operator of the Rex community, near Stockbridge, was missed from home about 3:30 p.m.

A search was begun immediately. Soldiers from two companies at the Atlanta General Depot, Boy Scout troops from Jonesboro and Rex, the Jones-

High Court To Rule on Quiz Shows

Evades Decision
On Korean War

By CHARLOTTE C. MOULTON
WASHINGTON, Oct. 12—(AP)—The Supreme Court agreed today to rule on the legality of mushrooming radio and television give-away programs and on a possibly far-reaching new test of movie censorship.

It refused, however, to consider a case in which lower courts held that the Korean conflict was not legally a war. That may cost insurance companies millions of dollars in double indemnity claims that would have been ruled out by "war clauses."

The cases were among nearly 400 petitions for review which piled up during the court's summer recess. Decisions on whether to accept them were announced at the first business session of the 164th term.

WARREN DIDN'T VOTE

New Chief Justice Earl Warren presided but said he had not voted on any of today's cases. The decisions were made last Monday—the day Warren was sworn in to succeed the late Fred M. Vinson—and he said he "lacked familiarity with the records."

The court left standing two Pennsylvania decisions in which an insurance company was ordered to pay double indemnity on men killed while on duty "during the Korean conflict." The company had contended that "war clauses" in the policies limited its liability. But the courts ruled the Korean fighting was not legally a war.

The radio-TV case is a challenge of the 1949 announcement that the Federal Communications Commission would deny license renewals to any station broadcasting give-away shows such as "Stop the Music" and "Hit the Jackpot."

The national networks immediately challenged the decision in the courts. The ban then was upheld pending final disposition of the case. Meantime, give-away programs have continued on the air.

At issue is what constitutes a lottery under the law prohibiting movies of lottery information.

MOVIE CENSORSHIP

The censorship case involves the picture "M," in which the central figure is a demented killer of small girls. It was banned in Ohio on grounds it would tend to promote crime.

The movie industry also has appealed the New York ban on "La Ronde" on moral grounds. It hopes to win decisions that will augment the court's 1952 ruling on "The Miracle." The court ruled then that censors may not forbid the showing of a film on grounds it is sacrilegious.

The new appeal was filed by Superior Films, Inc., producers of the movie "M." The Ohio Department of Education refused to permit the film to be shown on grounds that it would tend to promote crime. Its decision was upheld by the Ohio Supreme Court.

The producers argue that the film points up generally inadequate mental hospital facilities, the risks of letting children roam the streets unattended and the possible power of a criminal syndicate. They contend the state censorship law is unconstitutional.

Panty Raided College Rejects Note of Apology

FARMVILLE, Va., Oct. 12 (AP). The president of Longwood College today rejected a note of apology from the Hampden-Sydney College student body for a successful "panty raid" and banned dating between Hampden-Sydney men and Longwood's co-eds.

Hampden-Sydney, a men's school, offered a note of apology recommending "short term suspensions" if any raiders are found guilty by the student council. Dr. Dabney S. Lancaster, Longwood president, said the statement was "unsatisfactory" and gave Hampden-Sydney until noon tomorrow to "reconsider."

Until a "satisfactory" statement on disciplinary action to be taken is forthcoming, he said no Hampden-Sydney man will be allowed to date a Longwood girl.

Hull Carries Air Buildup Charges to Neutral Chiefs

MUNSAN, Tuesday, Oct. 13—(UP)—Gen. John E. Hull, new United Nations commander in Korea, meets today with members of the Armistice Supervisory Commission to press a UN complaint the Communists have violated the armistice by bringing warplanes into North Korea.

Hull asked for a meeting with Swiss Gen. Frederick Rihner and Swedish Gen. Sven Grafstrom, members of the neutral commission, in the first visit to Panmunjom of an Allied supreme commander.

Hull served notice he will follow the policies laid down by his predecessor, Gen. Mark W. Clark. Those include voluntary repatriation of prisoners and insistence that explanations to reluctant prisoners end by Dec. 24.

PRISONER DISPUTE

His notice to newsmen underlined charges by the U.N. command that the five-nation repatriation commission has acted in pro-Communist fashion in setting out some of the rules for explanations to prisoners resisting repatriation.

Hull talked informally for about

90 minutes with Lt. Gen. K. S. Thimaya, Indian chairman of the commission, in the first visit to Panmunjom of an Allied supreme commander.

ANOTHER DEMAND

The neutral repatriation commission was expected to make another demand on the U.N. today to speed up erection of explanation tents so the Communists may begin "explaining" to some 22,500 anti-Communists why they should return home.

Communist officers insisted Monday they will not begin the interviews until all 32 explanation booths are finished. Allied engineers, working night and day, finished 20 of them Sunday but the Reds refused to start the talks.

"DIDN'T KILL NOBODY"
John Wesley Wable

Suspect in Pa. Turnpike Slayings Seized After 96 mph. Chase in New Mexico

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Oct. 12

(AP)—An accused terrorist of the Pennsylvania Turnpike, captured after a breakneck police chase, today steadfastly maintained his innocence and implicated a mysterious "other man."

New Mexico state police late yesterday arrested John Wesley Wable, 24, charged with a double murder on the turnpike, on a tip from two petite young women playing cops and robbers to kill time.

PAWNED WATCH

Identified because of a watch he pawned, taken from one of the turnpike victims, Wable is charged with the fatal shooting of Harry F. Pitts, 39, of Bowling Green, Va., and Lester B. Woodward, 33, Harrisburg, Pa., last July.

The truckers were shot as they slept in their parked vehicles. The murders, and the subsequent non-fatal shooting of John K. Shepard, 34, West Alexander, Pa., threw a mantle of terror over the turnpike. Truckers traveled only in convoys and slept under lights.

"I didn't kill nobody," Wable told officers.

"But I think I know who did."

Midge Harmon Carolyn Smith
And I've got friends who will take care of him."

ADMITTED GUN

Undersheriff Walter Geis said the slender Wable admitted once owning a foreign make gun identified as the death weapon but maintained he gave it to a man he met on the streets in Cleveland. It was the same man, Wable contended, from whom he purchased a watch taken from Shepard and which he later pawned.

Geis said he was withholding the name of the man Wable is accusing. For those involved in Wable's capture, it meant both trouble and unexpected good fortune.

The chase started when three men held up an Albuquerque service station.

BREAKS BLOCK

State police threw up roadblocks, but the car driven by Wable sped through it. State police pursued the fleeing car at speeds up to 96 miles per hour, but were unable to catch up.

Snarled in evening movie traffic, Wable abandoned the car on the outskirts of Belen and struck out on foot.

Wable's two companions, Marvin H. Parsons, 20, and J. D. Francis, 17, were taken into custody almost immediately. They had hitched a ride with Wable in the Mojave Desert after their car broke down.

Benson Lays Farmer Woes To Readjustment Delays

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 12 (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Benson said today "unrealistic" postponement of agricultural readjustments during the past few years is responsible for some of the difficulties facing farmers now.

"We face serious challenges today—excess stocks of some commodities, loss of export markets, a severe farm price squeeze," Benson said. "These emergencies developed because farm policies and programs did not prevent them."

"We see today the results of these unrealistic postponements of agricultural readjustment. We are still producing at near-record levels, but demand has fallen off, especially foreign demand for American wheat and cotton at present support levels."

Benson, in a speech prepared for a dinner meeting of the National Association of County Agricultural Agents, said the previous administration used the "excuse" of emergency situations during the years since World War II to delay the farmers' transition from war to peace.

The secretary said excess stocks of some farm commodities are causing difficulties, but at the same time he said there is no general overproduction on the part of agriculture. The excess stocks on hand, he said, are largely the result of faulty programs and unwise policies.

The secretary said that one of his major aims is to seek increased local control of farm programs. That will mean greater re-

Guiana Strike Spreads; Called by Ousted Chiefs

By BEN F. MEYER

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana, Oct. 12.—A general strike, called by leftist government ministers kicked out by London as pro-Moscow plotters, spread slowly today through this British crown colony's basic sugar industry.

Three minor incidents of violence were reported, including the stoning of the house of a cane worker who refused to strike, the burning of 13 acres of sugar cane, and an attempted attack by angry workers on a plantation overseer.

The walkout paralyzed two of the colony's 14 sugar factories and threatened to close down more mills tomorrow, since about 40 per cent of the cane workers have already quit work.

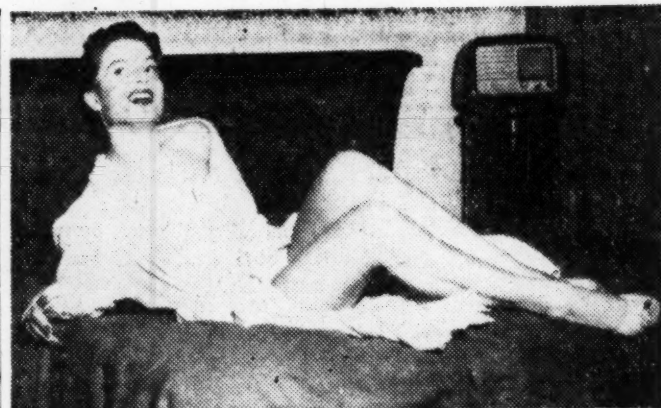

The strike was part of an anti-British campaign of boycott, non-cooperation and non-fraternization launched yesterday by ousted ministers belonging to the leftist People's Progressive Party.

The campaign was in retaliation for British action last week suspending the colony's new constitution and removing leftist Prime Minister Cheddi Jagan and five of his ministers on the charge they planned to turn British Guiana into a Communist state allied with Moscow.

London held its hand until 600 British troops and three warships arrived in Georgetown to back up colonial Gov. Sir Alfred Savage.

Probe of Signal Corps Hinted by McCarthy

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—(INS)—Sen. McCarthy (Rep., Wis.) said today that the alleged security leaks at the Ft. Monmouth, N. J., radar project have "all the earmarks of extremely dangerous espionage."

He said the investigation undoubtedly will go "beyond Ft. Monmouth and may involve the whole Signal Corps."

McCarthy pointed out that the Signal Corps "deals with the major defense against atomic attack."

McCarthy made his comment after questioning five witnesses in executive session before his Senate investigations subcommittee in New York.

The first witness, McCarthy revealed, refused to say whether he had ever passed secret material to Julius Rosenberg, later executed as an atomic spy, or to Morton Sobell, Rosenberg's co-defendant, now serving 30 years for espionage.

McCarthy did not identify the witness, but said he was an engineer who was employed at Ft. Monmouth until 1948. He left then to go to the Air Force as a civilian employee and, McCarthy said, the Air Force checked him and suspended him for security reasons.

The witness today, McCarthy said, refused to answer virtually all questions on the grounds that it might tend to incriminate him.

Today on Peachtree...

Heavenly Twins

If you see double at Davison's today, blame it on our globe-trotting fashion expert who went all the way to Paris to make sure you would. She went shopping at the haughtiest of the Haute Couture, bought the cream of the new collections like crazy, and hang-the-expense. Before you could say "Home, James," she had tossed herself and her fabulous originals on a plane for Gander and New York.

Back in New York, our gal had each fancy French original reproduced so faithfully that even its own Mere and Pere couldn't tell one from t'other. We'll bet the last franc left from our Paris shopping spree that you can't, either. But you can have fun trying, as the originals and their identical American twins swish down our runway today in four Fashion Shows (see ad at left for times and places). And even though you guess wrong about which is which, you'll still guess right because there is one big, beautiful difference. The prices of our own made-in-America translations are just a faint faraway echo of their high-falutin' French twins. Which should eliminate any guesswork as to which you'll choose. (Anyway the originals aren't for sale.)

Please tune in

Last Tuesday at 9:45 a. m. (via WAGA), a tall, lissome, comely blonde showed up on TV. Most folks recognized her as Atlanta's favorite book-reviewer, Lillian Church. Lillian reviewed books in person at Davison's for 12 years, and is now doing the same for us on TV. The audience loved her. You think books are dull? Lillian makes 'em as thrilling as a World Series game with Billy Martin at the bat. You think they're written by remote, untouchable people? Lillian's story of the late Ben Ames Williams and his wife literally choked everybody up. Maybe we're sticking our neck out, but here's our prediction: Lillian Church's talks about books and the people who write them, well may be to Dixie (on TV) what the late Alexander Woolcott's were (on radio). Today's Tuesday and it's getting on to 9:45. Better tune in. (And tell Mrs. Church your opinion, please.)

The lady wants OUT

A friend of ours who has our best interests at heart called to tell us this heartening little story. He was on a bus heading south on Peachtree when the electrified vehicle hove close to Davison's corner. On that day there was a patch of road being repaired where the bus ordinarily stops. So the bus driver, seeing he couldn't dock at the usual spot, headed for the next corner. There was a hush in the bus. Then an anguished wail reverberated through the crowd, as a lady planning to get off at Peachtree - and - Ellis screamed "Don't you even stop at Davison's any more?" Her tone of voice, our friend insists, marked her a Davison-partisan-to-the-end. Thank you, Ma'am, for your concern—the busses are once again stopping at our front door.

Child Molesters Merit No Mercy

Following the kidnaping and murder of Bobby Greenlease three waves of emotion swept the nation reaching every person in whom there is a heart. First, there came a deep sympathy for the bereaved parents. Then horror as we learned the details of the monstrous crime and as we realized that there were loose among us creatures of a depravity capable of committing it.

Finally, as the story has developed there has arisen a national indignation and a concern about parole practices and the criminal code, particularly in regard to sex offenses, including child molestations.

Residents of Greater Atlanta find assurance in the statements from the schools as to precautions taken to prevent unauthorized persons from taking children from their classes. Surely if the school officials had not been vigilant before, they will be now. The lesson from the Kansas City school is a grim one.

Atlantans are encouraged, too, by the report from the police department of the efforts being made by the police to eliminate child molestation and of the vigorous action taken once an incident is reported.

A case in point developed at the same time the Greenlease case was broken.

A man arrested on the charge of attempting to rape a 9-year-old girl quickly was bound over for grand jury action. He has remained in jail, bond having been set at $10,000, an indication of how the court feels about the nature of the charge.

The child molester must be treated as one capable of murder. The laws should be so rewritten as to separate him from society for life.

We commend the Atlanta police for their vigilance. Let them follow through. Parents can help them by instructing children to beware of strangers. Parents and the public can help by reporting promptly instances of molestation.

Meanwhile, Carl Austin Hall, dope fiend and degenerate, and his addict accomplice, Bonnie Brown Heady, have confessed that they planned to kill Bobby Greenlease even before they kidnaped him. Hall has admitted carrying the boy across the state line to commit the murder.

That makes the couple liable under the Lindbergh Law and that law calls for capital punishment when the victim is harmed. Let the law take its full course—and quickly.

Quietly, methodically and commendably, the Federal Bureau of Investigation has solved the Greenlease case. Again we are made to realize its efficiency and worth.

But another case like the Greenlease murder is in the making if the public is quick to forget. Only an aroused public opinion acting through the Legislatures and the courts can give us the kind of laws and the kind of enforcement required to prevent a re-occurrence.

Trieste Settlement Is Allied Objective

British and American efforts to precipitate a settlement of the Trieste problem may fail after all. Marshal Tito, after conciliatory moves to the West, suddenly promotes a crisis to prevent Zone A of the territory and the port of Trieste from being returned to Italy.

As involved as are all the angles to the question, Italy's claim to the area seems just and clear. Until his recent successes in Western diplomacy, the Yugoslav dictator seemed content to accept an eventual return of the disputed Zone A to Italy while he retained Zone B.

Tito now seems determined to prevent the zone and port from being turned over to the Italians even while he is perfectly willing for it to remain under international control.

The Yugoslav dictator has been quite successful in his dealing with the West. Taking full advantage of his defection from the Moscow camp, he has bargained with the West to bail him out of economic difficulties and for military assistance. His present ranting and warlike threats seem a little ridiculous. He is not likely to be accepted back in the Kremlin fold nor can he survive as a dictator isolated from East and West.

Some cool-headed diplomacy will be needed to clear the air over the Trieste issue. Certainly Tito must realize that his friendship with the West is more important to him than this bit of territory to which the Italians have a just claim.

The British-American action does put the issue clearly up to Italy and Yugoslavia. It is unlikely that our troops will be withdrawn if war is to be the result, but the announced intention to withdraw may hasten some sort of settlement of a situation that has long been a trouble spot in attempts to build a stable Western Europe.

Lending Racket Has No Place in Georgia

We are pleased with indications that definite progress is being made by Fulton Solicitor Paul Webb's office in investigations of alleged violations of lending laws. Approximately 40 cases involving 21 loan firms will be turned over to the Fulton Grand Jury for action this week.

The jury will, of course, consider each case on its merits. Where clear violation of the law seems indicated by the evidence, indictments will follow.

From information released to the press during the course of the current investigation, it is obvious that there is widespread abuse of the state's interest laws. Various subterfuges, including outright violations of the law, are being used to take advantage of the needy and the unfortunate. To get around the interest rate limit, devices such as exorbitant carrying charges, insurance charges and other extras of a seemingly legal nature are imposed.

Under whatever name they masquerade, such practices are usury and must be stamped out. They are not confined to Atlanta but exist in communities all over the state.

Fulton Senator Everett Millican, backed by other members of the Fulton legislative delegation, is reported ready to seek changes that would eliminate "loan sharking" in Georgia. Such a move deserves unanimous support of both houses of the Legislature.

In the meantime, Mr. Webb's office should continue its investigations of questionable practices to the end that those who are guilty are brought to justice. The lending racket must be wiped out. It has been on the civic conscience of Georgia for too long.

State Must Act Soon On Interstate Turnpike

The state of Indiana is planning a turnpike south from Chicago via Indianapolis to the Ohio River. Kentucky likely will pick the superhighway up at Louisville and extend it to the Tennessee line above Nashville.

Tennessee is no more than lukewarm toward toll roads thus far. But Tennessee is a narrow state north to south and tourists will find their way across it. Florida has the blueprint for a toll road from Miami to the Georgia line.

All this planning means that we in Georgia must get into action, as Dixon Oxford of the State Highway Board has reminded.

Otherwise, we may find that we are the missing link and the tourist flow will be by way of Alabama.

The Time Has Come To Put Safety First

Two Memphis policemen who fell for a driver's hard-luck story and tore up the traffic tickets they had handed him were fired from the force. They should have been.

The driver was charged with operating a car without brakes. But he said the ticket would work a hardship on him as he was ill and his wife was expecting a baby. Friends said the driver was a good citizen.

So because he was a good fellow, because he didn't feel good and his wife was going to have a baby, the officers decided he could continue to drive a car with no brakes.

Their leniency pretty well illustrates the attitude of the law and even that of the public in regard to a man's right to operate a car. The determining factor too often is the convenience of the individual with complete disregard to the general welfare.

The cause of traffic accident prevention will profit when the public safety is put first.

The Airport Never Is Quite Complete

It's 50 years for aviation, and 28 for Atlanta's municipal airport.

Half a century ago the Wright brothers made the first heavier-than-air flight from the North Carolina dunes, and cow pastures began to assume a new potential in city planning.

Atlanta, whose very reason for being is transportation, began to cast about for a landing field for aircraft, and in 1925 settled on the Atlanta Speedway, near Hapeville. The automobile race course had a flat infield, suitable for the barnstormers and air adventures of the day, so the city leased it from its owners, the Candler family. One of the original members of the city government's aviation committee was a young councilman, William B. Hartsfield. The councilman developed into sort of a perennial mayor for the town, which was fortunate for the airport. He regards it now as he did then, as vital to the city's future, and has become very adept at snagging federal funds for its development.

The airport rocked along, either dusty or muddy, depending upon the season, and never very busy. In 1927, an outfit calling itself the Florida Airmail initiated commercial flights, but the time was not ripe. It folded soon and in 1928 Pitcairn Aviation (later absorbed by Eastern Air Lines) began to haul the mail to New York and back. Pitcairn's first pilot was Gene Brown, still flying into Atlanta as one of Eastern's senior captains.

In 1929, it looked like commercial aviation was here to stay, and the city bought the 287-acre tract from the Candler. Regular Miami, Chicago and New York service was operating and an expansion program began that has no apparent end. Runways have been lengthened from 1,500 to 7,900 feet and the acreage expanded to more than 1,400.

Next to the Peachtree traffic bottleneck, the airport is about the busiest spot in the South today. More than 4,000 persons work there, and the payroll of all installations totals around $22,000,000 a year. In addition to the regularly scheduled carriers, non-scheduled flights, private planes and the planes of the armed services crowd the runways.

Jack Gray, who has managed the field for the city for 24 years, estimates that about 160,000 passengers begin or end their flights there each month. The latest count shows that 340,000 persons enter the terminal building during the same period on business or pleasure bent.

What's the next chapter? Nobody knows. Facilities are geared to 300-m.p.h. propeller-driven aircraft. The jet age may mean another port for the faster, noisier and larger express planes, with the present field surviving as the terminal for local flights only.

Kefauver Calls 'Spade a Spade'

WASHINGTON—Maybe the first cold weather that blew in recently from the West, or perhaps the meteor shower, or both, can be blamed on a phenomenon in the political world that was almost earth-shaking for these times.

This was when Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee hunched up his britches, drew himself up to his full height, and gave out thusly:

"The time has come to call a spade a spade and to say that President Eisenhower is a disappointing President." It wasn't a slip of the tongue, for he said it twice, two days apart, at Denver first and then in a speech at Milwaukee on a recent trip West.

The crime buster who wanted to be President himself, and so far as known still has that yearning, thus was more brash than most other Democrats in reaching right up to the man in the White House. Other Democrats have avoided that thus far as too dangerous. They regard the President as too popular and fear a boom-orang effect. Instead, it is the habit to pot shot at other targets—the whole Republican Party as such, or members of the Cabinet, among whom just now Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson is the favorite whipping boy for Democrats.

It might be that Estes Kefauver is bolder than the rest. Or maybe he's clairvoyant. Or, which is more likely, that down in Tennessee President Eisenhower himself has become the best issue because of what he said about TVA, which is virtually a household god in that state. When the President cited TVA as an example of "creeping socialism," it was like slandering a member of the family—and that's not safe.

If you can personalize politics, it is better. In fact, that's traditional down South. Senator Kefauver is an old hand at that.

So he's running against Ike. Another Tennesseean, Gov. Frank Clement, who was so bold at the Seattle conference last August as to challenge President Eisenhower to his face on TVA, nevertheless was very careful when he was here last week for his talk with the President to speak very highly of the Chief Executive. He sought to give the President an "out" on TVA by blaming the aides who had briefed Mr. Eisenhower on the great Tennessee Valley project.

Governor Clement, a very personable and vocal young man with almost the breezy Texas manner to match his broad-brimmed white hat, may run against Senator Kefauver for the nomination. Nowhere else thus far has President Eisenhower had such close personal identification with an issue as in Tennessee. In time it may get to the point where responsibility will be pinned on him instead of on Republicans in Congress or Cabinet members such as Messrs. Benson, McKay, Dulles, et al.

Faith in Atlanta's Future Is Greater Than All Glistening Concrete Strips

Atlanta—The series of articles on the expressway gave me, as it doubtless gave many another "new Atlantan," a feeling of pride in the spirit of accomplishment that distinguishes this city. I recently visited Los Angeles and while there was driven over some of the newly paved "freeways," notably the Santa Ana Freeway. It was natural to think of the rapid strides Atlanta has made, and which even now place it in the forefront of the nation's metropolises.

There is something more, something of greater value than even the glistening strips of concrete which will speed our transportation, increase our pace of living: there is the priceless faith in the city's future. When this faith is present in the hearts of leading citizens, it inevitably comes to animate each citizen of whatever degree.

Explains How Excise Tax Is Really a Sales Levy

Mt. Vernon, N. Y.—Eisenhower declared against a sales tax but did not bar manufacturers' excise tax in order to make up for the loss of revenue which will come Jan. 1. This is expiration date of the excess profits tax and the addition to the income taxes made necessary by our defense effort following the Korean War.

A manufacturers' excise tax is simply a general sales tax under another name. Only difference is that instead of being added by the retailer to the price paid by the ultimate consumer, as is the case with a sales tax, the manufacturers' excise tax is added to the price charged by the manu-

Non-Aggression Pacts With Reds Useless in Light of Past Events

WASHINGTON—This is a strange world of make-believe. Day after day from Britain and also from some spokesmen in America come suggestions that America and her Allies start "negotiating" with Soviet Russia. Or else Adlai Stevenson and others suggest that a "non-aggression" pact be signed with the Communists. Or else Britons, in urging a high-level conference of the heads of states including Russia, blame America for being cool to the idea.

Then after several days of that type of news the disillusionment comes. Anthony Eden, foreign minister of Great Britain, says:

"To read some comments you would think that a four-power meeting at the highest level was some magic formula which only the Americans prevent us from enjoying."

There is no objection here to talking with the Moscow government. But the American government's position is that "high-level conferences" are not likely to be of any avail if there is no commitment in advance either as to subjects to be discussed or what will be done about agreements already made and disregarded.

There is an agreement in existence now to hold a "political conference" on Oct. 28 between the Communist side and the United Nations side with reference to the settlement of the problem of Korea. But to date the Communists have done nothing but talk and argue.

Then there is the talk about a "non-aggression" pact. Secretary of State Dulles made it clear recently that Soviet Russia wasn't honoring the existing provisions of the U.N. Charter which provide against aggression, thus implying that there wasn't much use talking about another non-aggression treaty when those in existence were not being honored.

Mr. Dance Was A Rare Teacher

I was in Eatonton the other day for a funeral. After the service I walked through the cemetery until I found the grave I especially wanted to visit. On the white marble was carved: W. Lufkin Dance, May 12, 1902-January 10, 1946. That was all.

But as I stood there I thought of a lot of things, and I thanked God for him. I remember the first time I saw him. It was at Young Harris College and I had registered for his course in Greek. That first day he talked about the Greek language and literature and gave the assignment for the next day. I did not take him very seriously and went to class the next day without adequate preparation. I studied Greek under him for two years, but I never went to his class again without being prepared. He impressed upon me the fact that he expected his students to study.

At first I was scared of him; but as I came to know him my respect for him became such that I would have been ashamed not to have been at my best in his class. There at his grave I recalled how a man once said to a professor at Harvard, "So you teach Greek?" "No," replied the teacher. "I teach boys. Greek is what I start with."

Mr. Dance taught me one of the most valuable lessons any boy can learn. That is that it takes work, hard work, to amount to anything. I still have my copy of the Greek Grammar. The back is worn and the pages are loose because of the hours I spent studying it.

In the quiet of the Eatonton cemetery, I thought of a poem about another great teacher. When I got back home I looked it up. It goes like this: "Mark Hopkins sat on one end of a log . . . And a farm boy on the other . . . Mark Hopkins came as a pedagogue . . . And taught as an elder brother . . . I don't care what Mark Hopkins taught . . . If his Latin was small and his Greek was taught . . . For the farm boy he thought, thought he . . . All through lecture time and quiz . . . 'The kind of a man I mean to be . . . Is the kind of a man Mark Hopkins is.'"

During my years in high school and college, I had a number of teachers, all of which I now appreciate. But if today I started to list them, W. Lufkin Dance would be the first name I would write. As I think of him, the words of Nicodemus to Christ come to mind—"We know that thou art a teacher come from God."

In the quiet of that cemetery, I thought of something else. When I am buried it won't matter how much my salary was or how much estate I left. What will matter then is whether or not the life I lived counted for anything. I stood there and said a little prayer. It was this: "Lord, help me to live so that somebody somewhere will stand at my grave and be thankful that I lived."

Leaves Have Yet To Attain Peak

Don't feel bad if you didn't get onto the hills to see the pretty leaves this last weekend. They were not quite ready yet. Still stocked with chlorophyll. That's the way the forestry people explain the change from green to amber and red and the other fall hues. They say frost has nothing to do with the shift. Frost or no, the foliage has a regular cycle. The autumn extravaganza comes only when the chlorophyll runs out. On Saturday and Sunday last green still dominated the landscape except among the higher-ups, above the 5,000-ft. mark. We hit that level on the road which the National Park Service opened last summer. The highway begins at Soco Gap, on U. S. 19 east of Cherokee, N.C., and runs the ridges for about 11 miles to Heintzberg Overlook, in the Smoky Mountain Park.

The road itself is not spectacular, but the view is, from Mile High Overlook northwest toward Clingmans Dome and Mt. Le Conte and from the Heintzberg overlook, facing the same way. The new highway itself offers a sampling of the Blue Ridge Parkway, of which the Soco Gap outlet will be the western terminus.

May the Old Man of the Mountains forgive us for sneaking out of Georgia. The mission was to see the Heintzberg Parkway. Object accomplished, we came back by Brasstown, Blairsville and Vogel Park. There, too, we were ahead of the season. This next weekend and even through the next the colors will be right. For slopes aflame with autumn you need look no farther than our own mountains.

Answer to Soviet FEAR

by WALTER LIPPMANN

NO DOUBT because he has been too busy with other things, Senator Knowland (R-Calif.) has misunderstood the problem of the so-called security guarantee for the Soviet Union. In his news conference on Monday he was under the impression that the idea is to offer the Soviet Union a guarantee that she may remain undisturbed and secure in the middle of Germany and of Europe. This, said the Senator, would be another Munich. And so it would be. But is that the idea? In view of the fact that the idea was launched by Churchill, that it has been endorsed by Adenauer, Bidault and Dulles, it cannot mean what the Senator thinks it means.

The statesmen who are working on the proposed guarantee were not born yesterday. Does Senator Knowland, suppose that Adenauer, for example, is urging the Allies to give the Russians a guarantee that they may remain in possession of Eastern Germany? Or that Dulles is thinking of signing a treaty to legalize forever the Soviet military occupation of Eastern Europe? Or that Churchill—of all men, Churchill—is trying to contrive another Munich at the climax of his career?

THE TRUTH of the matter is just about the exact opposite of what Senator Knowland supposes. The purpose of a security guarantee is not to insure the Soviet occupation of half of Europe; it is to promote and facilitate a Soviet military withdrawal from Europe. The future of Europe and the peace of the world depend on whether an agreed withdrawal can be negotiated.

It may not be possible to do this. But the basic situation today is that the Red army cannot stay in the center of Germany for more than a few short years at the outside: if it stays too long, there will surely be a German national explosion in which all of the occupying powers will be involved. On the other hand, it is very dangerous for the Soviets to withdraw their Army. For such are the hatreds caused by the Stalinist oppression that in all likelihood the satellite governments would be overthrown by fanatically anti-Soviet uprisings as the Red army withdrew.

THIS Soviet dilemma—that it is dangerous for them to stay and dangerous for them to leave—is the real problem of security. Soviet propaganda, naturally enough, never mentions it. But there can be little doubt that this is what the Russians are really worrying about when they say that the United States and NATO are conspiring to start a war. They cannot seriously believe that Eisenhower is going to attack them. What they must really fear, and not without reason, is that a re-armed but dismembered Germany might move upon the East, raising the captive peoples of Poland and the other satellites, engaging NATO and the United States in the crusade.

The idea of some kind of guarantee is addressed to this extremely dangerous dilemma in which the Soviet Union is caught. There are, it seems, many people who are puzzled as to why we should worry about whether a great aggressive power is afraid. They should remember that while fear is not always an element in aggression, nearly always it is an element. Men, like animals, are never more dangerous than when they are frightened and cornered. The wise men of Europe and of America do not wish to corner the Russians.

WHAT would have to be guaranteed, assuming that the extremely difficult problem could be solved, is that the unification of Germany and the liberation of Eastern Europe will be achieved by negotiation and not by violence, and that the new Europe and the Soviet Union will both be secure. We are only at the very beginning of this business which may, however, unless things go to pieces, develop into a very great undertaking of epochal significance.

The central principle of this undertaking is already discernible from intimations which have come recently both from Germany and from France. It is to convert the proposed West European military alliance into an all-European guarantee of security; to convert the West European market into an all-European market; to convert the West European political community into an all-European political system in which the evacuated countries could, without unmanageable violence, take their place.

Such a European order will like Rome, not be built in a day. But the effort to build it is worthy in itself, and will confer great dignity upon those who participate in it and will bring its own rewards.

after the arrest of the couple here. The FBI said Hall and Mrs. Heady confessed they dug the grave before they put their kidnap plot into execution.

Confronted with a mounting pile of unanswerable evidence, Hall and his divorcee companion made their new confessions to Joseph E. Thornton, agent in charge of the FBI here, and agents working under him.

Bobby apparently was put to death in the 1951 Plymouth station wagon of Mrs. Heady after the couple had driven him to a point about 1 1/2 miles from U. S. 69 in Kansas, 12 miles outside Kansas City, Mo.

A bullet found lodged in the blood-stained station wagon was shown by ballistic tests made by the FBI in Washington to have been fired from a .38 caliber revolver taken from Hall upon his arrest here.

A mechanical pencil of a type known to have been carried by Bobby was found at the spot of the slaying. It was one advertising an automobile agency operated by Robert C. Greenleaf Sr., 71-year-old father of the boy.

One phase of the case still unsolved is what happened to some $300,000 of missing ransom money. More than $295,000 of the money, in $10 and $20 bills, was in the apartment-hotel room where Hall was seized.

Hall has maintained he was drunk and under the influence of morphine after his arrival here and that he must have lost a suitcase full of money.

cluded the Reds of lying when they claim they favored including neutral nations all along.

The joint message was an answer to messages from Red China and North Korea over the weekend requesting new talks at Panmunjom to discuss not only the time and date of a peace parley but also the makeup of the meetings.

The United States has argued against admitting India and other neutrals to the peace parley, although agreeing that Russia could take part if the Communists want to invite the Soviets on their side.

Mrs. Vijaya Lakshmi Pandit said after a White House visit today she believes President Eisenhower shares her optimism on the outlook for a Korean peace conference soon.

Mrs. Pandit, president of the United Nations General Assembly, said she and Eisenhower agreed to "leave no stone unturned to ease the present deadlock" over the question of a peace parley.

Will Oust Italy From Zone A, Tito Warns, Invoking U.N. Charter

ther evidence of their present excitement, marked by a pronounced anti-Western attitude.

In Belgrade, despite President Tito's admonition to avoid violence, ruffians beat up William D. King of Florence, S.C., U.S. State Department official. They entered the U.S. Information Center and added further damage to the display room which was battered Thursday night. Another gang invaded the British reading room.

Woodruff Wallner, U.S. charge d'affaires, and Sir Ivor Malet, British ambassador, registered immediate vigorous and "serious protests" of their governments. An official spokesman told the press, however, that Yugoslavia could not guarantee security in places open to the public at the present time.

Throughout the country demonstrations took place for the fifth straight day. While most of them were reported to be orderly, there is no question but that a definite war atmosphere exists. Many persons openly express their fears, while many others openly express their determination to wage war against Italy if necessary.

There were further reports today in the Yugoslav press of continued Italian reinforcements to the troops stationed along the Yugoslav frontier north of Trieste.

In the note to Hammarskjold it was asserted that the Italians had begun moving troops toward Zone A.

Thus far there has been no announcement of a Yugoslav movement of troops to the Italian frontier, although that is expected. Yugoslavia already has sent army and navy reinforcements to its occupation Zone B, four miles from the city of Trieste.

The note to Hammarskjold was obviously designed to avoid a showdown, for President Tito publicly declared yesterday that he would send troops into Zone A the moment an Italian soldier sets foot there.

In the note to Hammarskjold, Yugoslavia stressed her intention to abide by that declaration and called attention to Article 33 of the charter, on "Pacific settlement of disputes."

In this way Yugoslavia sought to bring United Nations weight behind the new four-power conference she is proposing, for this article calls for attempts at negotiation when a party to a dispute feels that peace and security are threatened; in this article the Security Council is empowered to demand a negotiated settlement.

It is pointed out here that Yugoslavia had not, as she might have, called upon her U.N.

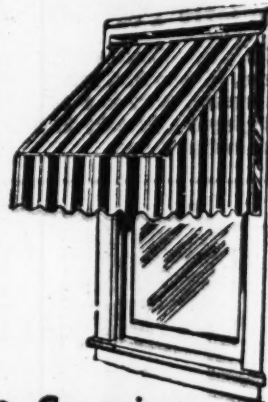

representatives to bring the dispute to the United Nations directly. Yugoslavia, it appears, does not desire a United Nations debate on the Trieste issue at the present time. Thus the device on calling Hammarskjold's attention to the situation was employed in order to elicit action in that quarter.

The Dandy Little Manager

With two perfect blocks from the World Series and the worst football week Georgia Tech has suffered in three seasons, Gene William Mauch got away on a belly play that carried him all the way from Atlanta to Los Angeles by way of Chicago. The kid turned in his managerial card, told Earl Mann he'd had enough of the executive life until the man overcame the boy in him.

This was a decision that made both parties mutually happy. Mann was ready to concede that his lust for youth at the helm had been overdone. Mauch was ready to concede that a fellow 27 years old might get a bigger kick out of life just playing the game.

And so the sale was made. Mauch to Los Angeles. The dandy little manager now may become a dandy little second baseman again, and for his sake I hope he does. He never was here in Atlanta. I'm not at all sure he'll make it on the Chicago farm, for just a couple of days after the Angels bought him they followed it up with what the parent club called the purchase of Bob Ramazotti and Tom Brown.

It seldom ever is anything more than an exchange of paper where parent and farm clubs are involved. Whatever it was, it stands that Mauch's got his work cut out for him, for both Ramazotti and Brown are heavier hitters.

There were two jolting features about the Crackers that Mauch ran. One was his own reluctance to play and the other was the shocking lack of spunk on a team whose chief had built a personal reputation on spunk. Advance agents had proclaimed Mauch one of the nation's leading fire-eaters. He did display a distinct dislike for umpires, but umpires also displayed a distinct dislike for Mauch, and the umpires never lost one yet.

—Basic Training in Brooklyn

The Crackers left their clientele flatter than flat in the clutch throughout the summer they specialized in blowing the big game that could put them over the top. The quality missing here was something stronger than spunk.

The older the season got the less Mauch went into the trenches with his troops. This was utterly out of character for the fellow. All last winter after he'd been signed, we all went about the country saying that we didn't know what kind of manager the Crackers were getting, but we were sure they'd have the best second baseman in the league. Even in a season noted for ordinary second base play he wasn't the best, or second best. You'd have to go with George Moskvich of Birmingham or Tony Roig of Chattanooga. Mauch never gave them much of a contest from July on. Maybe you could charge it off to the burden of managing.

It was a burden for the young fellow. On the surface, he was a cocky, swaggering fellow, Napoleon with Waterloo by the tail. Underneath, he was unsure of himself, a boy lacking, of all things, confidence in Mauch as a manager. This should not qualify him as a public enemy, for it happens in a lot of cases. It just seemed most highly improbable in the kid who got his basic training in Brooklyn, fought under such a throat-cutting general as Leo Durocher and beside such reckless soldiers as Eddie Stanky, Earl Torgeson and Pete Reiser.

—On One Subject Eye to Eye

Now the Mann-hunt is on again. For the third time in three years the Crackers will have a change in managers. It hasn't been a bad policy to have something new and different each season from the angle of the press. But for the public, which likes to grab hold of a fellow and make him a hero or a bum, and for the sake of continuity, it isn't altogether desirable.

But first of all, the man who runs the club must be satisfied. The process of hiring and firing in baseball is no different than in any other business. First, the boss must be pleased with the employee's work. Usually, if he is, so is the public, though this isn't always the case.

Take the Lou Boudreau thing in Cleveland. Bill Veeck couldn't wait to run the guy out of town. Then the citizens rose up. Boudreau had to be retained, and even when he left, though he went a loser, Cleveland wasn't sure which should have gone, Veeck or Boudreau. There wasn't much time for wondering. Veeck was gone before long also.

Bus drivers, ribbon clerks, bank presidents, lawyers and Indian chiefs are picking Mann's next manager for him now. Rogers Hornsby was in town trying to give him a hand, so the story goes. Bobo Newsom volunteered during the World Series, and Johnny Mize gave everybody the impression he was quitting the Yankees to become a manager, presumably Atlanta. I doubt it.

After Dixie Walker, Mann wanted a deucedly clever playing manager. After Mauch, Mann is ready to settle for a bench manager. (Incidentally, if Mize should get the job, he would play only against his will. Just can't stay in shape any longer.) This points to Whitlow Wyatt, who, if he had none of the other golden qualifications he has going for him, purely and simply deserves the chance.

Like I said, though, the bossman must be satisfied first. As another member of the public, I really won't be too choosy, so long as the fellow wins the pennant. So often the bossman and the public see eye to eye on this matter.

Five Drop Brownie Suit

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 12 (AP)—Five of seven minority stockholders withdrew as plaintiffs today in a suit seeking to keep the St. Louis Browns from moving to Baltimore.

Jerome Duggan, attorney for the minority stockholders, filed the withdrawals with Circuit Judge William B. Flynn.

After a conference with Duggan and Kenneth Teasdale, attorney for the ball club and Bill Veeck, former president of the Browns, Flynn rescheduled opening of the trial in the suit for Wednesday.

While the American League already has approved the transfer of the Browns to Baltimore, the deal has not been formally completed.

Collier's Wallace Liked Morris In Tulane Tilt

One of the men who picked Georgia Tech's Larry Morris as a preseason all-America saw him in action last week and was sorry he didn't go even stronger on the Decatur Destroyer.

Francis Wallace, who writes an annual football roundup for Collier's Magazine, got his first look at the 205-pound junior center against Tulane in New Orleans.

"I've seen all the men we picked for all-America," Wallace said, "and Morris is the best."

The linebacker made nine tackles against Tulane. That gives him 34 for four games.

'New' Campagna Still Scoring TDs

No Punt Return Specialist
Now, He Does Everything Well

By DEWEY BENEFIELD
Special to The Constitution

ATHENS, Oct. 12—Jimmy Campagna, Georgia's lightning punt return specialist in 1952, has shown a fiery, although less dazzling punch this season.

The Rochester, N.Y., native zoomed into the headlines with a 100-yard punt return against Vanderbilt in his varsity debut. Later he hauled back a Pennsylvania punt 60 yards to paydirt and toted home an Auburn kickoff 96 yards.

This fall the sophomore specialist has become an effective all-around left halfback as a junior. He'll be a prime threat against LSU here Saturday.

Last weekend, Campagna skirted the Maryland line for Georgia's final score. He had previously tallied on the same play against Villanova from 12 yards out.

In addition to his fine scoring run, Campagna's catch of an 18-yard Bratkowski pass kept the Bulldogs' first scoring drive alive.

The speedster is second to league-leading John Carson as Zeke Bratkowski's favorite pass receiver. He has snagged six for 89 yards. One 13-yard scoring pass was nullified by a penalty in the Texas Aggie tilt.

Although Wallace Butts tries to use defensive artists Jimmy Williams and Bobby Garrard at left halfback whenever possible, Campagna has turned in a creditable job in that department.

He leads the team with interceptions, grabbing two for 23

HANDY MAN FOR LSU'S TIGERS
Will They Forget Tittle for Al Doggett?

HE'S AN EX-HALFBACK

Al Doggett Pulls Tiger Strings

By DAN HARDESTY

Baton Rouge State Times Sports Editor
BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 12—If Louisiana State's 1953 football team has been a surprise to Dixie fans, the same can be said of quarterback Al Doggett—and it can also be said that as Doggett goes, so go the Tigers.

For two years, Doggett was a good all-around halfback who did a lot of running, threw an occasional pass, caught quite a few passes, did most of LSU's punting and played some defense.

Last spring, in the annual search for a quarterback which has been standard procedure at Tigertown since Y. A. Tittle ended his career in 1947, Coach Gaynell Tinsley gave Doggett a trial at operating the T-formation attack. It wasn't any howling success, but neither was it a failure, so when the team's only experienced quarterback, Cliff Stringfield, became ill nine days before the opening game with Texas, Doggett was hurriedly moved back under the center.

The result was amazing. The Tigers caught fire and took a good Texas team apart, 20-7. Then they were held to a 7-7 tie with Alabama, although outplaying the Tide by a big margin. Next came what turned into a breather with Boston College, 42-6. In all three of those games, Doggett's

ANOTHER PASCHAL?
Tech's George Volkert

Kid Volkert Likened To Old Ace Paschal

Tech Frosh Flash Fighting
For More Time at Halfback

By EDWIN POPE

Bobby Dodd stamped George Volkert for greatness with a single statement: "He runs like Bill Paschal."

Dodd, of course, is Georgia Tech football coach. Volkert is a 180-pound freshman halfback from Nashville, Tenn. And Paschal is the old Tech High and Tech freshman flash who went on to the New York Giants and the rushing leadership of the National Football League in 1943 and 1944.

Paschal's style was a lazy-looking lope, a splendid and deceptive stride that left countless tacklers clutching air where they thought Paschal's legs should be.

Volkert is that type. He runs in the most baffling manner of any Tech back in years, has a change of pace to go with it.

Auburn will get a look at the kid Saturday, and Jacket staffers hope the Plainsmen's view of Volkert is something like that of Tulane, Davidson and the Clemson freshmen—from the rear.

The handsome blond Swede moved the ball spectacularly at least once in each of those games. He uncorked 50-yard runs against Davidson and the Clemson frosh. He caught a pass from Bill Brigman that carried 18 yards and sent Tech to halftime with a 14-6 lead over Tulane which the Jackets eventually expanded to 27-13.

"That catch he made on the 10 was dandy," Dodd said. "But he didn't even slow down. He sidestepped two men and picked up a Dave Davis block and scored. He could have gone 50 more yards if he'd had to."

Volkert tailbacked so brilliantly for Nashville's Isaac Litton High last year that longtime onlookers called him the city's finest football flash in 10 years.

Georgia Tech snagged him over the outraged howls of hometown Vanderbilt and marked him down for possible late-season third-string duty after he shone so brightly in September. Now he's pumping for wholesale playing time in a left halfback scrap that includes all-America Muggsy

Dooley, Scarbrough May Miss Saturday's Game

Defensing Tech Now Even Tougher,
Herring Tells Quarterback Clubbers

Setting a defense for Georgia Tech, a difficult task to begin with, looks even tougher for Auburn's football team today. Quarterback Vince Dooley and guard Bob Scarbrough are hurt and on the doubtful list for Saturday's game here.

Hal Herring, Plainsman assistant coach, told the Atlanta Quarterback Club last night that Dooley, No. 1 quarterback, is having trouble with a head injury sustained last week. Scarbrough, second-unit guard, has a hurt leg.

Herring was one of the chief designers of the defenses that helped Auburn whip Ole Miss, 13-0, and the Mississippi State, 21-21, in successive weeks. "Actually," he said last night, "desire is the best defense against a ground game and rushing is the best defense against passing. Take Dooley away and you take away a lot of desire. Take Scarbrough away and you sure take away a lot of rushing."

Herring, West Point native, former Auburn captain, rookie college coach but veteran

BULLDOGS NEED DEFENSE

LSU Boasts Best Team In 10 Years, Says Butts

"Our only chance against the best LSU team in 10 years is to improve our defense. We're getting the maximum out of our offense right now."

Those were the words of Georgia Coach Wallace Butts before the Atlanta Touchdown Club yesterday.

"When Maryland beat us 40-13," he said, "our tackling was the worst I have ever seen. We had the angles and the opportunities and did not use them. And when one man did make a tackle, nobody else offered to help. We're going to have to learn to gang-tackle and work as a team if we're going to beat anybody from now on."

Butts said he and his staff had no illusions about the crushing by Maryland. "They would beat us any time we played."

(The Associated Press poll arrived an hour or so later with support for Butts' opinion. Maryland is now ranked No. 3 nationally.)

"I'll say this," the grim Athens boss declared, "we're not going to play Maryland again until we have the material to compete with them."

"This LSU team that comes to Athens is not so fast as Maryland but just about as rugged. We will be outmanned from tackle to tackle, but figure we have the ends and the passing attack to at least make it interesting."

Butts smiled wanly when somebody told him the game was rated a tossup. His answer: "Huh!"

"Look, we started the season with John Carson and Joe O'Malley at ends, Buddy Mathis and Frank Malinowski at tackles, Bruce Wimberley and Sam Mvros at guards and Derwent Langley at center."

"Carson has been great offensively, average defensively. O'Malley was hurt in the first the pace, drawing 20 votes as the sparkplug of the White Sox. Mantle with a .296 average, 92 RBIs and 13 homers, tied with Bauer with 13 votes each.

Porterfield, a 22-game winner with only 10 defeats on a fifth-place club, clearly stood out among the pitchers with 20 votes. Nine of his games were shutouts and he had 24 complete jobs. Pierce, who had 11 votes, had an 18-12 record, was the Chicago "stopper" and led the league in strikeouts with 186. He also had seven shutouts.

THE PREPARADE

Crawford, Austin, Tidwell Give Foes, All-Star Pickers Headaches

By CHARLIE ROBERTS

Rate as headache number one for pickers of Georgia high school All-State eleven is 1953 season's end the chore of choosing a center in Class AA ranks. At least six coaches believe they have a pivotman who is "best in the state."

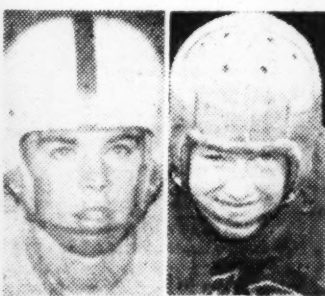

Frank Jones at Decatur believes his boy, 185-pound Ed Crawford, is the most accomplished all-round center because of his exceptional blocking ability and his diagnosis of plays as a line-backer. Crawford's savage tackling has made undefeated Decatur much tougher than expected, because the entire rather light line was a question mark at the outset.

Dickie Butler at Columbus High and most Region 1-AA territory newsmen say that the Imps' Billy Austin is the finest linebacker of recent seasons. Austin weighs in at about 220, and is a real pulverizer.

Max Ivey of Atlanta Murphy's undefeated defending state champs would name his Jim Tidwell, 180-pounder who is regarded as an even more able blocker than linebacker, at which he also excels.

Erskine Russell believes much of the credit for the unbeaten status of his Grady powerhouse is due to the linebacking craftiness of center Walter Stovall. Phil Alexander of Bass wouldn't trade Jim Hawk for any of them.

Jack Peek at Brown goes for his Crawford Kennedy, 185-pounder who made at least two all-state teams as a junior.

Ed Crawford Don Braswell

All of which brings to mind the fact that one of the best all-round centers, through the years; Albany's Harold Deen Cook—now doing some line backing as a freshman for University of Georgia—didn't make all-state a year ago. Kennedy and Marietta's Harold McCampbell made most of those selected.

PREP PRATTLE—Outside of center and backfield, which is always toughest of all, guard probably will prove the next hardest spot to pick in AA circles. Albany's 205-pound Don Braswell is almost sure to be high in the running. So are Mike Anderson of Murphy and William Sanders of Lanier. Roy Vickery, Murphy's 215 pounder, will be well up on the tackle list. Dwight Horton, a back a year ago, perhaps has been the City League's biggest surprise now that he has been shifted to tackle. The Northside star is by far the area's most able coverer on punts.

Speaking of "converted" stars,

Golf For All

Bob Barbee Belts Short Putt a Mile

By Jimmy Mann

ATLANTA GOLF FANS haven't read too much about Bob Barbee. But he is one of those players who is thinking golf whether he is near the course or not.

You know, shadow swinging at work, practice putting on the home carpet and chipping in the front yard. Barbee, a North Fulton and Bobby Jones player, has a weekly foursome including Ted Johnson, W. E. Spirelli, and William Starr. Friday the group ended their 18-hole play square and, as is the custom with them, carried everything over one more hole. It looked as if the play was to go two extra holes because Barbee was on the green with an eight-inch nudge to tie the other team.

He moved up, took the usual practice stroke and it happened! He hit the ball on his practice swing, it squirted straight out to the right and he was left with a six-footer that was never attempted. Johnson and Starr testify that if they had been any further way from the clubhouse, friend Barbee would need a new set of clubs. He started breaking them on the way to the clubhouse and when they entered the building four of the sticks were in two pieces. And he has quit taking practice swings.

DAN POWELL has one for the books. Last week with Thomas Martin swinging along with him at Bobby Jones, Powell who considers himself lucky to break 100, knocked in a three iron on the first hole for an eagle three. Two hours and some 60 shots later the pair was playing the 14th hole, which parallels the first one. Powell hit a good tee shot, all but fanned his second try, but on his third he caught it good and sliced the ball across the fairway into the cup on the same No. 1 hole he had eagled earlier. Martin says, "You won't believe it but we took the names of two fellows playing the first hole at the time. They were Davis Towerly, and Benson Clapp. Honest, it happened."

A. J. KAISER equaled his life's lowest round last week at West End with a 78. Kaiser had H. W. Chambers, Tom Ford and George Simons looking on. . . . George Edwards and Wilbur Owens won the blind bogey at West End. . . . C. A. Barnes, Pete Barnes, W. L. Renter and Dr. A. O. Lind were dog fite champs at East Lake Sunday. . . . Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Givens and Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Denson grabbed the dog and cat honors. . . . Abe Massar, the "old reliable" from Bobby Jones is the 1953 Industrial golf champ. Massar received his trophy along with other flight winners, C. W. Barnes and P. D. Leonard at the YMCA last week. . . . Teddy Hayes, pro at James L. Key, was confronted with a good-natured M. N. Morgan last week who had just turned in his first under 80 score, a 77. . . . T. M. Schooley, J. O. Fischer, P. B. Fladger, J. R. Henderson, and J. H. Souther were among bogey winners at East Lake Saturday.

strategist off his record as ex-defensive captain for the professional Cleveland Browns, told the Quarterbacks that Auburn really wanted to see Tech beat Notre Dame on Oct. 24. "I've always been told," he twinkled, "that the roughest team is a rebounding team. We hope Tech will have to rebound from Auburn."

Herring singled out sophomore end Jim Pyburn for his work in the State game and his status as one of Auburn's biggest threats against Tech. The Birmingham team scoring lead with 18 points kid caught four passes for 94 yards against State, making three magnificent catches on the final drive. "He's as good a passer as any I saw in pro football," Herring said.

At Auburn, Head Coach Shug Jordan checked films of the State game, wiped his brow and called it "a miracle."

Jordan said, "We shouldn't have even been in the game for two-and-a-half quarters. We lacked fire, blocking and tackling."

Colorado Casualty BOULDER, Colo., Oct. 12 (AP)—Sophomore tailback Homer Jenkins may be lost to Colorado's football team for the season because of a cracked bone in his left leg, the team physician reported today.

TIGER SCRATCHES: Pyburn now has caught 10 passes for 172 yards and is tied with Fob James Jr. and Bobby Freeman for the lead in the team scoring lead with 18 points. Guard Ben Higgins, out since yards against State, worked in pads yesterday and will play on the second unit Saturday. . . . George Atkins, who blocked a punt that led to Auburn's second touchdown against state, lost half a tooth and received a lip-cut requiring five stitches in the State game.

To the man who...

Once a year, at this time, the great American Petroleum Industry of which Pure Oil is proud to be a part, takes a big stretch—and gives itself a resounding pat on the back!

This is good, healthy American exercise—especially since it takes the form of a report to you on "Oil—at your service"—from an industry that employs two million people and whose products affect all our lives in many important ways.

You'll be getting this report on new and improved petroleum processes and products in newspapers, magazines, and movies, over radio and television, from highway billboards and window displays.

So, right here and now, we're taking care of another timely matter—a little thing that certainly ought to be done at least once a year:

It's a tip of the Petroleum Industry's many, many hats to that friendly fellow on the corner—your service station man.

To the man whose service so often goes far beyond the requirements of the purchase.

To the man who keeps our cars rollin' and our trucks truckin'.

To the man whose helpful courtesy long since built a tradition of service that still stands unique in the field of retail selling.

No matter what color cap he wears, what company he represents, he is certainly—

The man who symbolizes so well: "Oil—at your service."

Unions Here Ponder 4 For Top Post

The Atlanta Federation of Trades will meet at the Labor Temple tomorrow night to name a successor to Henry W. Chandler, who resigned recently after heading the AFL organization for nine years.

Delegates representing AFL locals have indicated that they expect the federation head to be chosen from among four union leaders long prominently identified with federation activities.

They are W. A. Cetti, painters' union president; F. H. King, machinist union business representative; J. O. (Jim) Moore, painters' business representative, and Ralph Elliott, bakers' business representative and acting federation president during the past several weeks.

The federation accepted Chandler's resignation in September after the veteran labor leader explained that he was giving up the post to devote full time to his new position as a member of the national board of the carpenters' union.

Earlier Chandler had led some 3,000 local carpenters in pulling out of the federation following a national-level AFL dispute during which AFL President George Meany ordered his organization to "disassociate" from the carpenters.

The carpenters returned to the federation several days later following settlement of the differences but in the interim Chandler accepted a post as head of the carpenter union's District 4 with jurisdiction over 80,000 members in 14 Southern states, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands and the Panama Canal Zone.

He said the duties of his new position would require considerable traveling and would cause him to miss many federation meetings.

1,200 Sugar Workers Quit Fields in La.

RESERVE, La., Oct. 12 (AP)—Twelve hundred workers walked off the job at the four largest sugar plantations in the state today and union officials said the strike was not aimed at crippling the sugar harvest which is just beginning.

The strike "is purely a fight for recognition" of the National Agricultural Workers Union as bargaining agent for the cane workers, officials said.

Hank Hasiwar, vice president of the union, who called the walk-out, said the strike "in no way" threatens the harvest, expected to be one of the biggest in Louisiana history.

"The central issue of this dispute is not wages, but recognition as the bargaining agent," he said.

Growers, organized under the American Sugar Cane League, have refused to recognize the union, which claims 3,000 members of the estimated 15,000 cane workers in the state.

Growers have been paying an average daily wage of from $4.50 to $5.00 to cane workers. The minimum wage, set by the federal government under the sugar act, is $3.40 a day.

Rate Cut Extension Denied by Railroads

CHICAGO, Oct. 12 (AP)—The railroads announced today denial of a request by drought-area farmers for a long extension of freight rate cuts on hay and cattle feeds.

H. C. Barron, secretary of the Western Traffic Association, said the railroads, however, did extend from Oct. 1 to Oct. 15 the deadline for shipments of hay and cattle feeds at half rates. The lower rates had been in effect since July 1.

Youth, Losing Street Fight, Fatally Knifes Gang Rival

BOSTON, Oct. 12 (AP)—Richard Cashman, 17-year-old high school junior, was stabbed to death in the street today by another boy as throngs looked on.

Police said a 16-year-old neighbor of the victim's sister confessed to the stabbing and showed them where he hid the seven-inch knife he used.

The fight between the boys started when Cashman's sister, Mrs. Anna Sperrazza, got into an argument with the other youth.

When Cashman appeared to be getting the best of the brawl, police said, the other youth disappeared for several minutes and returned with the stiletto-like knife.

He stabbed Cashman once in the chest as bewildered neighbors looked on. Cashman died before arrival at a hospital.

The youth was booked on suspicion of murder and will appear tomorrow morning in Roxbury Juvenile Court. His name was withheld owing to his age. Police said they also arrested several other members of rival teen-age gangs who were involved in the argument.

Shell Premium Gasoline with TCP* actually re-powers your engine... gives you up to 15% more power, up to 150% longer spark plug life... increases mileage, too.

(and only Shell Premium Gasoline has TCP)

The Greatest Gasoline Development in 31 Years

Shell Premium Gasoline with TCP, the Shell-discovered additive, stops the major cause of power loss. It stops "wild ping" (pre-ignition knock) and short-circuiting of spark plugs, caused by engine deposits. Acts so rapidly, engine power is increased up to 15% after using two tankfuls.

If the car you drive is an older model, chances are you expect its power to drop off in time. But if it's a new one with a high-compression engine, it's annoying to have it get lazy after only a few thousand miles.

Now, however, the major cause for power fall-off in both old and new engines is known. And there's something you can do about it!

The reason why engines lose power is the accumulation of deposits within the combustion chambers and on the spark plugs. In the combustion chamber these deposits are heated red hot and cause the fuel-air mixture to ignite prematurely. This is called pre-ignition; it results in a severe kind of knock which engineers call "wild ping." You have probably heard it, especially when accelerating or hill climbing.

You may have also noticed that your engine develops an unexplained "miss" when driving on the open highway. That's because the same deposits "build up" on your spark plugs and short-circuit them.

To overcome these deposits and thereby eliminate the greatest cause of power and fuel waste affecting the majority of cars on the road today, Shell Research discovered a unique fuel additive, TCP. Blended into Shell Premium Gasoline it accomplishes what no other fuel ever did before. First, by fireproofing the deposits it stops pre-ignition. Second, by changing the character of the deposits it eliminates the short-circuiting of spark plugs.

As a result, you may, by simply changing to Shell Premium Gasoline with TCP, increase your engine's power up to 15%, your spark plug life up to 150%, and get extra mileage, too.

Indeed, Shell Premium Gasoline with TCP is the most significant fuel development since the introduction of tetraethyl lead in 1922.

All engines are helped

Because these deposits accumulate in all engines, Shell Premium with TCP additive will restore much of your engine's original power even though your car has been driven for years.

Shell Premium with TCP Quick to Act

So quickly does it act that you'll feel your engine has had a tune-up before you've finished the second tankful! Of course, as the deposits are constantly accumulating, continued use of Shell Premium with TCP additive is the only way to maintain its benefits.

'54 Plymouth To Be Shown On Thursday

Plymouth will display its 1954 line of automobiles here and throughout the nation Thursday. Made up of 11 body types in three series, the new models will have optional power steering and three choices in power drives.

Longer than last year's models, the 1954 Plymouths feature new body lines, a new front end design, new interiors, advanced design seat cushions and engine improvements among 64 advancements in styling and engineering design.

Even if you've tried before and failed, you'll be astonished by the results when you use Flavettes.

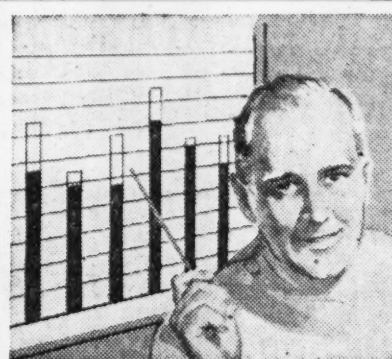

How to Stop Smoking —with Flavettes!

Keep Flavettes with you at all times. Then—whenever you feel the urge to smoke, take a Flavette instead. As it begins to dissolve in your mouth, your desire to smoke begins to disappear. Day by day, you take fewer Flavettes and finally, in all probability, none at all. Before you know it, you're rid of the tobacco habit!

No Gain
In

When people stop smoking, they usually develop an irresistible desire to eat too much. One of the great advantages of Flavettes is that they curb your tendency to overeat—as well as your craving for tobacco. So you don't have to have any worries about putting on weight when you use Flavettes!

Actual Tests Prove It Works!

Flavettes have proved successful for over 75% of the smokers who used them in medically supervised tests. These were men and women who had tried to quit smoking before and found that will-power alone was not enough. But will-power—plus Flavettes—worked!

Harmless—Not Habit-Forming!
Flavettes' unique combination of medicinal ingredients was developed by a prominent physician whose findings have been reported in America's leading medical journals. Flavettes contain no lobeline sulfate or any other harmful drugs; it's the distinctive, lingering flavor of Flavettes that satisfies your craving for tobacco. It's that simple!

The Amazing Discovery You've Been Reading About!

Flavettes are the remarkable new development which has been reported in leading medical journals, TIME, Pageant, and newspapers across the country. Today, Flavettes are available at all drug counters for those who really want to cut down or stop smoking entirely, without gaining weight. There is only one Flavette. Every bottle carries the famous Norwich name and is sold under the Norwich money-back guarantee. Accept no substitutes.

Save Money on Smoking Bills!

The cost of using Flavettes is so little, compared with the cost of using tobacco. And think of the saving, when you've broken the smoking habit entirely!

Start Taking Flavettes Today!

Don't put it off! Now's your chance to break the smoking habit—easily, pleasantly, quickly! Where there's a will—and Flavettes—there's a way.

Feel Better!

If your doctor has advised you to stop or cut down on smoking—or if for health reasons of your own, you wish to rid yourself of the smoking habit, Flavettes may well be the answer you've been looking for.

Georgia Tobacco Crop $79 Million in 1953

By JIM MONTGOMERY

Thirty-six years ago the cotton-craving boll weevil invaded Georgia and other Southern states. Because of this insect's destructive impulses, Cotton Belt farmers turned to growing new crops . . . including tobacco.

Georgia's "miracle crop" underscored its rapid gain of importance in the state this year. Bright-leaf tobacco sales for 1953 at 19 south Georgia markets broke all records, both for pounds sold and money received.

The month-long sale season (July 17-Aug. 24) saw 155,170,266 pounds of the golden harvest move through the Georgia market. Buyers paid $79,923,828.18 for the crop, an average of $1.51 cents a pound.

This represents an increase of 117,256 pounds and $9,064,067.43 over the next biggest year, 1951.

Georgia growers were responsible for 136,788,710 pounds of this year's total, while out-of-state tobacco men moved 18,381,556 pounds through Georgia markets.

The Statesboro market led all others in the total number of pounds sold, with 15,585,640. The top average price, however, was paid at the Douglas market—55.67 cents a pound.

The increasing monetary and productive importance of Georgia's tobacco crop is highlighted by a comparison of the 1953 figures with those of 21 years ago, as furnished by the Georgia Department of Agriculture.

In 1932 the farmers were paid $1,267,211.07 for 12,171,179 pounds of tobacco, an average price of 10.41 cents a pound.

$1,285,778 in U. S. Contracts for Georgia

Nineteen Georgia prime contractors in nine of the state's cities are sharing $1,285,778 in current government contracts, according to the Atlanta regional office of the U. S. Department of Labor.

Atlanta businesses lead with eight contracts, three are in Savannah, two in LaGrange and one each in Albany, Baxley, Quitman, Richland, Statham and Winder. The amount awarded a fourth Savannah firm was indefinite.

The largest contract, $305,698, was awarded to the Westinghouse Electric Corp. in Atlanta for fan units.

Manufacturers See Clear Sailing

Southeastern manufacturers now see "clear sailing" ahead in the manufacture of their products so far as government controls are concerned.

A recent Washington announcement that remaining controls on nickel and nickel-bearing stainless steel, two major commodities used in the region, will be removed, should serve as a "great impetus" to manufacturing operations in the area, the regional office of the U. S. Department of Commerce predicted.

Nickel will be freed Nov. 1, and controls on nickel-bearing stainless steel are expected to follow shortly. The burden of filling various government forms will also be relieved.

Accountants for Ex-Winecoff Owners Awarded $26,860

An Atlanta firm of accountants has been awarded a verdict of $26,860, one of the largest in the history of the civil court of Fulton County, in a suit against Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Irwin, former owners of the onetime Winecoff Hotel.

A jury in the court of Judge Paul S. Etheridge made the award after hearing a full week of testimony. Judge Etheridge said it was the largest verdict in his five years on the Civil Court bench.

A jury found in favor of the accounting firm of Young, Garber & Troy, and another accountant, L. L. Stapleton, holding they helped the Irwins reduce a federal tax bill from $493,000 to $143,000.

The firm contended it was promised 7½ per cent of any savings it could make in the final settlement of the $493,000 bill which was sent the Irwins in September, 1946.

Two years later, in 1948, the government reassessed its claim against the Irwins, placing it at $365,000 for the years 1919-1945.

About that time the accounting firm withdrew, claiming the Ir-wins would not cooperate in obtaining necessary records for an accounting.

When the government, represented by former Asst. Atty. Gen. T. Lamar Caudle, finally settled in 1951 for $143,000, the accountants brought the suit seeking a share in the savings from the original tax bill.

Supreme Court Skips Review of Linen Stock Suit

The U. S. Supreme Court yesterday refused to review a lawsuit involving $4,000,000 in stock in an Atlanta linen supply firm.

The suit was brought by Mrs. Odile V. Hubert Tucker of New Orleans to obtain possession of some 488,000 shares of stock in the National Linen Service Corporation.

She claimed the stock had been wrongfully diverted to the Atlanta company from Crescent City Laundries, Inc., when National Linen absorbed Crescent in 1932.

Wholesaler In Squeeze, Parker Says

MAGAZINE EDITOR
H. McKinley Conway Jr.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., Oct. 12 (AP)—William A. Parker of Atlanta, Ga., president of the National Wholesale Hardware Association, said today, wholesalers are caught in a "profit squeeze" between inflated costs and inflated volume.

"This has resulted in a shrinkage in hardware wholesalers' net income before taxes," Parker reported to the association's annual convention. "This net-before-tax figure was just 4 per cent this last year, and it would not require any great decline in volume to shrink this net figure even further, possibly to the danger point, or even to the vanishing point."

Parker said it is now "generally expected" that business will "turn down a few points." But he said "there seems to be no general feeling that there is cause for great alarm about it."

He recalled that "in spite of the uncertainty that existed at this time a year ago, the fact remains that business volume during the first three quarters of 1953 has run somewhat ahead of 1952."

Parker spoke at the convention's opening session. The meeting is one of several being held here in conjunction with a four-day convention of the American Hardware Manufacturers Association.

Reinforced plastic tanks for storing oil and fresh water are being installed experimentally on five Navy mine sweepers. They resist corrosion and are as much as 40 per cent lighter than metal tanks.

Trade Organ Slated Here

The how's, why's and wherefore's of industrial expansion—sought by almost every community in the nation to boost local prosperity—have given rise to a new national magazine with headquarters in Atlanta.

Called "Industrial Development," the new magazine will begin publication in January, and will be devoted to area analysis and business site selection.

The publication will be edited by H. McKinley Conway Jr. of Atlanta. He is a director of the Southern Association of Science and Industry and edits the Journal of Southern Research and the Southern Industrial directory.

Think of Child If Parents Err

By ROBERT B. GIFFEN
DEAR MR. GIFFEN: How can one make legitimate an illegitimate baby?—MR. H.

Dear Mr. H.: Right at the beginning, let us get a couple of things straight. It has been pointed out, but not often enough, that "there are no illegitimate babies, but only illegitimate parents."

The legal process is by marriage or by adoption through a court, or both, and your lawyer can advise you how to proceed in your special situation.

Babies conceived out of wedlock are the victims of the selfishness of adults, and therefore adults owe them special consideration.

Our Lord was not harsh with the sins of love, but much more severe with the sins of pride and complacency. I believe that we can infer much from what He said, and from what He is not reported to have said. But His principles are to be applied in every instance according to the facts in that case. Will the child best be protected by the unwilling parents' marriage? Will the child best be protected by adoption into a home where childless parents have long and unsuccessfully wished for children? Should foster home care be provided until the natural mother is able to assume her place by the child's side?

These are questions for skilled, responsible counsel.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

DR. THEODORE R. VANDELLEN

Mild Heart Attack

Can Be a Blessing

Coronary thrombosis continues to be the most notorious of all heart attacks. It has been in the limelight so often that chest pain has become synonymous with heart disease.

We know that this is not necessarily true but we need not sit around and guess because means are available for detecting even minor coronary attacks.

To understand coronary thrombosis it is necessary to know something about the coronary arteries. These vessels are the first two branches off the main artery (aorta) as it leaves the heart. Their principal duty is to supply the heart muscle with oxygen and nutrient.

When the old ticker beats fast the demand for blood is greater and the coronary vessels dilate to increase the flow. They usually continue to work efficiently in this way until attacked by the No. 1 disease of the arteries, arteriosclerosis. In time they become harder and narrower and ultimately the day comes when their quota of blood cannot be delivered should the heart rate be increased by exertion or excitement.

When this occurs, the muscle puts up a howl, which is interpreted as chest pain. The individual stops what he is doing, the rate slows down, and pain disappears.

The mild or moderately severe attack may be a blessing in disguise. It serves as a warning to the afflicted person that he ought to take stock of his way of life to determine what factors are contributing toward stress and strain.

When the old ticker beats fast the demand for blood is greater and the coronary vessels dilate to increase the flow. They usually continue to work efficiently in this way until attacked by the No. 1 disease of the arteries, arteriosclerosis. In time they become harder and narrower and ultimately the day comes when their quota of blood cannot be delivered should the heart rate be increased by exertion or excitement.

A Rhyme a Day

"Farming hazards have discouraged many young people with the result that our population continues to center more and more in the cities."—Trade magazine excerpt.

The urge to get back to the land . . . to those wide-open spaces . . . is not too hard to understand . . . for in a lot of cases . . . the city folks come from the farm . . . and have a secret yearning . . . for old familiar scenes that warm . . . the heart at every turning.

They have a sentimental streak . . . for happy scenes of childhood . . . the wooded hills, the crystal creek . . . that ambled through the wildwood . . . the well grandfather dug way back . . . when he and grandma married . . . and built that simple little shack . . . where, for so long, they tarried.

Their great ambition was to give . . . their kids an education . . . so they could move somewhere and live . . . without the aggravation . . . of drawing water, chopping wood . . . and wet-nursing the cattle . . . they'd tried it and they understand . . . that farming was a battle.

Whenever I begin to "yearn" . . . I take a double-jointed . . . and solemn oath I'll not return . . . and have them disappointed.

The bidding:

South West North East
2 no trump Pass 3 clubs Pass
3 spades Pass 4 spades Pass
6 spades Pass

Opening lead: Five of Diamonds.

The final contract was six spades. On an examination of the combined holding, it becomes apparent that the slam contract is not a sound one. The odds are very heavily against fulfillment. In the first place, there is an inevitable heart loser. After which, there is the queen of trumps to worry about, not to mention the distribution of the adverse trumps and the little matter of handling the odd club. But in the actual bidding, it is rather difficult to avoid reaching the slam. This is apt to be the case on hands in which there is such a distinct duplication of values as is the case in the diamond situation where South's ace-king are duplicated by North's void. North's response of three clubs was not conventional but was made specifically for the purpose of affording South the opportunity to show a major suit if he happened to have one, the void in diamonds militating somewhat against a final no trump contract.

The five of diamonds was opened, and declarer was called upon to time his sequence of plays perfectly in order to fulfill this perilous contract. The diamond ruff must not be taken now because it will be required for the purposes of entry into dummy later in the play. The first trick was won with the king in the closed hand and a high trump led just for luck. The three of hearts was then led to the nine in dummy. East actually took the trick and returned a club. Declarer won and overtook the ten of hearts with the jack to try the spade finesse. This succeeded and the remaining trump was drawn. The king of hearts was then cashed, dummy entered with a diamond ruff and the losing club discarded on the established heart.

Note that if the diamond is ruffed in dummy early, East will refuse to take his ace of hearts till the third round, and declarer will have no entry to dummy in the end play to cash the long heart.

YOUR MIND'S MIRROR

By JOSEPH WHITNEY

Are high school students too old to cry?

Answer: Yes, they are if they use crying to get their own way, or if they give way to emotional outbursts over failures and disappointments. Most high school students have developed sufficient self-control to suppress crying in spite of an occasional desire to "let go." Frequent outbursts indicate emotional insecurity and while most youngsters outgrow it, wise psychological counseling will help them over the rough spots and aid them in developing a greater degree of maturity.

Visitor Suffers 3d Theft From Car at Valdosta

Constitution State News Service
VALDOSTA, Oct. 12—Jesse Thomas, who assisted police in capturing a Negro suspected of stealing a pocketbook from the Thomas car, should be about tired of his reception in Valdosta.

Thomas was a victim of auto looters when he spent the night here Aug. 16. At that time a box of fishing tackle was stolen from his car. Shortly after the arrest of a trio here last month, his fishing tackle was recovered by Valdosta police.

On a subsequent trip here, he returned to his parked car and saw a Negro taking the fishing tackle box out of the car. He shouted and the man dropped the box and fled.

Then on the third consecutive trip to Valdosta he surprised a man taking a pocketbook out of his car. He caught the suspect, got the pocketbook and then helped police find the man after he was forced to release him at knifepoint.

U.S. Claims Control of Slot Sales

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12—The government insisted today it has the right to control slot machine sales even within a state's borders.

Robert L. Stern, acting solicitor general, told the Supreme Court the government must have that right in order to enforce a law which prohibits interstate shipment of gambling devices.

He asked the court to order reinstatement of indictments which charged two Georgia men with selling slot machines without registering with the attorney general and without reporting the sales to him.

U.S. District Judge S. M. Scarlett of Savannah, Ga., had dismissed the indictments against Roscoe Denmark and Milton M. Braun. The judge said the anti-slot machine "in so far as it undertakes to regulate purely intrastate transaction goes beyond the power of Congress."

Stern contended that most slot machines made in the Chicago area and that the only way to trace their movement across state lines is to require the dealers in these machines to register and report to the Justice Department.

The slot machine business, he said, is "in large part operated by the underworld," and the people involved in this business might be expected to use all kinds of "subterfuge and strawmen" to mask any illegal interstate shipments.

Funds To Halt Polio Spread Is Drive Aim

Georgia chapters of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis will seek to raise an extra $400,000 in the state's March of Dimes next January for a new activity—polio prevention.

John A. Sibley, state chairman of the drive, announced yesterday the additional money will be used to help finance a mass inoculation of children (including some Georgians) with a new vaccine which promises permanent immunity from all three types of polio.

Sibley said part of the funds also will be used to purchase large amounts of gamma globulin, the temporary immunizing agent which has been used with apparent success in checking polio epidemics.

"After 16 years," Sibley said, "the National Foundation seems to have come up with the answer to infantile paralysis for future generations."

The vaccine to be tested on a vast scale was developed by Dr. Jonas E. Salk of the University of Pittsburgh. His research was supported with March of Dimes funds.

Gen. Alvan C. Gillem Jr., executive director of the Georgia March of Dimes, estimated the extra funds needed will require Georgia chapters to raise a total of about $1,200,000—50 per cent more than was raised this year.

Nobody Works at This Place

By DOTTY LUNDY

No wonder nobody likes to work at "Settendown" Farm. The Boston rockers, captains' chairs, window seats and comfy roosts on the premises discourage labor.

"That's what we decided to call our 20 acres in the country, because we wanted to make our place as cozy and restful as possible," explains Mrs. Kingsley Weatherly about their white frame home hidden behind a russet and green drive beyond Stone Mountain.

The Weatherlys moved into the former summer home in 1941, and added a wing to each end for permanent occupancy.

DECORATING TASTES

Defining her tastes in interior decorating, Mrs. Weatherly says "I like the kind of table that was whittled out of a log when somebody needed a place to eat on, with no thought for style or period."

Her Lazy Susan is an example. "The mountain craftsmen must have used the materials most handy, for legs are chestnut, top is pine and the 'Susan' is poplar." Provincial paper and braided rugs add to the rural charm.

Sideboard and Welsh dresser are pine, which is the predominant wood. When the sideboard had to be repaired, the workman, noticing intricately hand-tooled hinges, commented, "The guy who made these hadn't had a drink of likker in a long time." Most of her lamps once flickered with kerosene flames.

CURIOS FROM ATHENS

Other items she picked up in her native Athens, such as a prosaic silver bedpan which once belonged to the sweetheart of John Howard Payne, creator of "Home, Sweet Home." The utensil is now a modest receptacle for greenery in the living room.

The Weatherlys, who include sons Charlie, 10, and Kingsley, 20, like to study and play in the kitchen. Besides the trappings for cooking and eating there is a second cozy fireplace and upright piano. The hearth boasts hand-molded bricks which still bear human fingerprints. A refinished school desk holds magazines.

Mary Haworth

Husband Overseas, Bride Pursued by Other Men

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: From the time I started dating I always had boy friends. They were always decent fellows; we did nothing of which to be ashamed and, when a party turned into a petting party, my beau took me home—at my request. I learned that a simple, sincere "No" was all I needed to keep a boy in line.

Eighteen months ago I married Joe and, while he was here, I was never bothered by other men. But since he went overseas with the Army, I am back in circulation—so the fellows seem to think. I love my husband dearly and intend to be true to him forever but, with each month of his lengthening absence, more and more wolves appear. I live with my parents, so I am not alone in an apartment.

From the day I met Joe I have never dated nor even thought of anyone else; yet no matter where I go, I seem to attract unwanted company. Even with my dad or father-in-law, or an uncle or brother as an escort, I am confronted by some character trying to run interference. When these wolves try to start a conversation, I show my wedding ring and say I am not interested. K. B.

Dear K. B.: This magnetism, that seems to figure in your difficulties with men nowadays, is an aspect of cosmic polarity. I suppose, by which I mean the business or complementary (but different) energies in nature coming together, not by taking thought, but in tacit obedience to primordial impulse, which aims at the creation and/or evolution of species.

Looking at your playboy pursuers in this light, it seems to me that they aren't addressing the individual you.

If you aren't disturbed by the wolf pack, in the sense of being tempted to folly, there is no cause for concern. M. H.

Nutrition Eases Pangs Of Hunger

By IDA JEAN KAIN

October's bright blue weather is wonderfully invigorating. That nip in the air sharpens appetite, and you come to the table HUNGRY. Naturally, a low calorie meal seems woefully inadequate. But the science of nutrition can save the day.

At the beginning of the meal, sip a hot soup, or a tasty bouillon. This helps you to settle back and enjoy the meal. For space fillers, have celery, radishes and carrot slivers with the bouillon.

Enjoy the meat, vegetable and salad course, and eat it slowly. There are a number of reasons why it is more slimming to eat slowly, one being that chewing brings comfort.

BREAK THE HABIT

It pays to break the fast-eating habit. An effective way to do this is to chew one forkful of food and swallow it BEFORE forking up the next mouthful. Of course two-fisted eating, a piece of bread in one hand and a fork on the other, makes for fast eating—and more calories. Try eating with one hand in your lap—and eating for taste, not quantity.

The main course of the meal can be surprisingly satisfying. Build it around a fair serving of lean meat, or fish or fowl, with visible fat trimmed off.

It's all right to have some fat in the diet, for staying power, but wouldn't you rather have a little butter, or salad dressing or perhaps whole milk? Since fats count high in calories, they must be restricted.

CHOOSE ONE STARCH

On the vegetable score, choose only one starchy food, such as potatoes or rice, and one other vegetable, plus a crisp, bulky salad. Or if you skip the starchy vegetable, you may have a roll or a slice of bread instead. Or choose another low calorie vegetable. Take your choice. To make the main course seem generous, have it on a luncheon size plate instead of a big dinner plate.

On a 1,000 calorie diet, it is best to restrict dessert to fruit.

Bird Clubbers To Discuss Atomic Age

The Rev. Fred Glisson, chaplain at Emory University, will discuss "Birds in the Atomic Age" at the meeting of the Atlanta Bird Club tonight at the Atlanta Public Library.

Anyone interested will be welcome, according to Hal Herremann, club president.

The club is now planning its fall series of screen tours, now in its eighth year in Atlanta. The first is scheduled for Nov. 21 at O'Keefe High School and will feature G. Howard Cleaves, who specializes in wildlife pictures made at night.

Tickets for the series are available from George Beal at 1099 Pegg Rd., East Point, or at Miller's Book Store at 64 Broad St.

French Expert Predicts Pale Look

By AGNES McCARTY

Although visiting the country to spearhead an anti-smear campaign with the introduction of a non-streak powder, Parisian Guy Nicolet criticizes American women for their practice of wearing either extreme makeup or none at all.

The beauty consultant for Elizabeth Arden's Paris salon is in Atlanta this week to introduce Continental makeup styles.

Blond, dapper Nicolet stated that French women are using very pale, opalescent powder for evening wear to make the skin look ethereal. Accent is on eyes and mouth with bright lipsticks and silvery eye makeup intended to produce a "romantic look."

DRAMATIC ARTIST

The beauty consultant began his career as a makeup artist in a New York dramatic workshop. Since then he has applied his skill and skin portions to some of the most photographed women in the world. Rosalind Russell, the Duchess of Windsor, Joan Crawford, Lana Turner and Claudette Colbert are among his clients.

Nicolet advocates the use of a gray pencil for eyebrows. "Much softer than black or brown. Eyebrow pencil should be used lightly—just enough to follow the natural line. Eyelids should be outlined with slight upward curves at the corners to affect the oriental look now popular."

NATURAL LIPLINE

Guy also suggests following the natural lip line with slightly heavier application of lipstick to the lower lid. The facial analyst advises women with wide noses to use dark powder and base along the sides of the nose and light tones on the ridge. Light-toned powder and base are also helpful for banishing circles under the eyes.

When asked if he thought men would approve his advice for accent on lipstick Nicolet agreed that from an observer's point of view heavier lipstick was good but from a participant's experience he sympathized with male objection.

The new powder Nicolet's company is introducing is produced in cake form, comes in several different shades and may be applied again and again without any danger of streaking or matting.

Celestine Sibley Where Nancy Foxed the Tories

WAR WOMAN CREEK—The women of Elberton are the smartest ones. They want to furnish Nancy Hart's cabin.

You all know Nancy Hart, Georgia's favorite Revolutionary War heroine. She was a plain country woman, ugly (six feet tall, redheaded and cross-eyed, by some accounts) and unlettered. But she loved her country and she had courage.

Her cabin which has been rebuilt exactly as it was, where it was on a sunny, treey slope near Wahatche, or War Woman Creek, has been taken over by the State Parks Department, with the blessings of the ladies of the DAR and in its quiet way it has become one of the tourist attractions in this part of the country.

Folks come from all around to see where Nancy outwitted the Tories. It's a lovely, peaceful spot, looking very much like it must have looked when Nancy dwelled there nearly two hundred years ago. Except for one thing. There's no sign of life in the cabin.

I went there with Mrs. Zach Copeland, (the Edna Arnold Copeland, who wrote "Nancy Hart, The War Woman") and Mrs. John S. Allgood, the new custodian of the place, was showing it to some visitors. When they left she told me about the cabin.

She and her husband farm the land adjoining the old Hart place and Mrs. Allgood has had some state funds to spend in keeping the cabin up. Her first job as new custodian was to haul off several loads of beer cans which visitors had left in the cabin.

That is not the "lived in" air the women of Elbert County had in mind for Nancy's old home. They want to fix it up as it was when Nancy and her family were there, waging their hard battle for existence against Indians and Tories and the tough, back-breaking business of wrestling a living from the land.

If the Parks department can build a permanent caretaker's cottage in the park itself, the women of Elbert County will supply enough old furniture of Nancy's era to fix the place as it was. Mrs. Copeland will even lend her precious Nancy Hart pipe, which was found in the chimney when the old fireplace was rebuilt. Rope beds and a loom and spinning wheel, crude benches and old cupboards and other house fixings are available the minute their owners can be assured they will be safe from vandals in Nancy's cabin.

Besides that, Mrs. Allgood, getting her inspiration from Mrs. Copeland's book, is eager to replant Nancy's orchard and herb garden back of the cabin.

Nancy, according to Mrs. Copeland, had the best apples in the section and when the women of the county were expecting they invariably "craved" some of Nancy's apples.

The War Woman grew and sent rosemary (for remembrance) to funerals and weddings, made garlic poultices for smallpox cases and gave garlic juice for consumption, made tansy tea for teething babies and raised mint and fennel for food flavoring.

To have her orchard and garden replanted would make this memorial a living one—and far more interesting to history-minded visitors than a plaque on an empty house.

A FEAST TO THE EYES AND THE APPETITE
Baked Eggs Provincial With Mushrooms and Pimiento

If Pleasant to the Eye, Half of Food Battle Is Won

By JEANNE HIGGINS

Providing a feast for the eye is half the battle when getting together a dish to draw exclamations from the family. And the endless variety of egg dishes suited to main course serving makes it simple to please the most meticulous member, both visually and to the taste.

The feature making baked eggs provincial notable is that it presents eggs in straight sunny-side-up form, instead of the omelet or soufflé form which is more usual for main courses. It's different from the breakfast egg in that mushrooms, onions and pimientos in a thickened sauce made from the mushroom liquor set it apart.

BAKED EGGS PROVINCIAL
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 3-oz. cans sliced mushrooms
2 tablespoons minced onion

1/4 cup minced pimiento
1 tablespoon flour
4 eggs
Salt and pepper
1. Melt butter or margarine.
2. Drain mushrooms; measure liquor; add water if necessary to make 1/2 cup. 3. Cook mushrooms, onion and pimiento in butter or margarine until onion is lightly browned. 4. Sprinkle with flour. 5. Add mushroom liquor. 6. Cook, stirring constantly until thickened. Divide among four buttered ramekins, making a slight hollow in center. 7. Break an egg into each ramekin. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. 8. Bake in moderate oven, 325 degrees F. 20 to 25 minutes or until eggs are set. Makes four servings.

Avoid Threats; Use Your Head Instead

Not long ago this space was devoted to the widespread use of threats by parents in a cheap, thoughtless, futile effort to obtain obedience.

Even if a threat works, we wrote, it is a low form of discipline, for it disciplines thru fear, a method even animal trainers decry.

"We know all that stuff," one irritated mother wrote. "You list a lot of 'don'ts,' but what do we use if we don't use threats?"

Use your head. If you are going to threaten, carry thru with it. See that the threat is executed.

If you tell Willy you are going to call the police if he doesn't start minding you, call the police. Make an utter idiot of yourself. Let the police lecture you for using their name in vain. If you tell Susie Dr. Whipple will have to come see her if she doesn't eat her lunch, and she does not eat her lunch, call Dr. Whipple and ask him to come see Susie. You won't dare, of course, tell Dr. Whipple why you really called him.

If you say to your child, "The next time you do that, I'm going to spank you!", go ahead, spank. He at least will know you mean it.

It is never too late to start over. Try it. Try a whole day without a threat. When do you threaten anyway? When exasperated. When tried beyond endurance. Go ahead; get exasperated; get angry. Who cares? Get angry and get it over with the way your child does.

If you can get thru a day omitting that ominous, "If you . . ." from your vocabulary, try another omission the next day. Try omitting "Don't." We all make an inordinate number of requests and demands on our children. From half to three-fourths of them are negative.

If these two trial days are successful, try something else for a solid week, refraining from every request. It sounds impossible. It isn't. (Instead of "Come to lunch," for example, try "It's time for lunch.") Then gradually let the important requests come back into being.

WARNING: If hair is "sun-burned" you need this special home permanent!

Stewardess Heimbach and Pilot Coyne examine envelope with $1,000 bill in it after flight. Even a 17,000 foot altitude, temperature changes of 95° and wind velocities of 386 m.p.h. hadn't loosened tight-sticking Texcel Tape.

Yes, we bet a $1,000 bill on the sticking-power and strength of Texcel Cellophane Tape—and we won!

We taped an envelope containing $1,000 to the fuselage of a big DC-6. The ship flew the 724 air miles from Chicago to New York, and through some bad weather at that. Yet the Texcel Tape didn't even pull up at the edges.

There's a good reason for Texcel's sticking-power. It simply has better "stickum" . . . made possible by a remarkable new ingredient called Neotril that makes Texcel Cellophane Tape stick smooth, tight and long.

Next time you buy cellophane tape, make sure it's TEXCEL—the tape with better "stickum." When you want to mend torn paper or do any of dozens of important little fix-up jobs, you'll bless the way it lies smooth and hangs on.

Talmadge Insists Schools' Fate Tied to Segregation

Restates Private Setup Pledge
On Nationwide TV Program

Gov. Herman Talmadge told a nationwide television audience last night Georgia will abolish public schools and subsidize the individual child if the Supreme Court orders an end to segregation.

Opposing his view on "The Big Issue" over WLVA, which originated in Washington, D.C., was

Aubrey Williams, publisher of Southern Farm and Home Magazine. "The time has changed when an issue such as this (segregation) can be decided over a long period of time," Williams said, "it must be done decisively and clearly by the Supreme Court."

"The Supreme Court ruled 75 years ago," Talmadge argued, "that the matter of segregation in public schools is up to the individual states. I don't think we have any justices on the bench today who have a better understanding of human beings than those gentlemen did 75 years ago."

BASED ON CONSTITUTION

When asked if his segregation views were based on the constitution, Talmadge replied: "There are inferior people in every race. My opinion is based on the Constitution which says that every state has the right to determine the kind of schools it shall have. If the courts interfere, we'll have a police state. After all, if you set up schools by sex that doesn't mean one sex is inferior to the other."

Talmadge also stated that nowhere does the law regulate public schools. When told it is a matter of "public consent," he answered: "You don't run a government on public consent."

Williams upheld that the matter of public school segregation was a violation of the public rights of Negroes. "It's an individual thing," he said, "their rights are being violated. If a child is refused the right to go to a public school he has the right to appeal to the highest court in the land."

DEFINES EQUALITY

"Segregation does not mean a violation of the rights of anyone," said Talmadge, "and equality doesn't mean that races should have to go to school in the same building and in the same room, either."

In stating that Georgia would abolish the public school system and set up private schools, Talmadge remarked: "It will not be in violation of any state or U.S. law."

Later Williams said there was no merit to claims that Negroes themselves did not want segregation ended. He pointed out that recently in South Carolina and Alabama Negroes of churches and schools contributed heavily to assist in the fight against separate but equal school systems.

At one point in the program a questioner stated that at one time Massachusetts, New York, Ohio and other states had segregation and that it had been abolished without any serious problems by state legislation. He suggested that possibly the state level would be the best way to decide the issue.

"This is a matter to be decided by the highest court in our land," Williams asserted. "The problem of inequality and segregation begins in the school, but you produce a situation there which is carried out and maintained from then on."

4 Jailed With Bomb In NW Fringe Area

By KEELER MCCARTNEY

A 22-year-old automobile hauler and three companions were arrested last night in possession of a powerful home-made bomb in the Cairo street, NW, section where repeated house bombings and fires have occurred, police said.

Capt. W. L. Duncan identified the man charged with possessing the bomb as Murlin Fred Burt, 22, of 536 Cairo St., NW. Duncan said the three companions were held temporarily for investigation.

The bomb, which police said was capable of destroying an entire dwelling and probably killing the occupants, was fashioned by taping five sticks of dynamite around a metal bar. He said the bomb was equipped with a detonator cap and fuse, needing only a spark to set it off.

ANSWERING TIP

Four detectives who went to the Cairo street address to investigate a tip that a wanted person could be located there made the arrests. Detectives J. N. Gossett and J. G. Adams, who were standing at the back door, said they observed Burt attempting to hide the bomb when Sgt. U. G. Oakes and Detective R. H. Kerr knocked at the front door.

Burt denied knowledge of the bomb, detectives said. The arrests, climaxed six months of investigation in which a special police guard has been maintained in the Cairo and Simmons street section. Since April 1, records show, two houses have been bombed and a half-dozen others set on fire in the area where Negro families have bought homes in white sections.

The most recent bombing occurred Oct. 7, damaging three houses at 507, 511 and 517 Cairo St. At that time, officers said, a dynamite bomb was hurled against the window of a Negro home, but failed to break through the window screen.

The heavy metal bar around which the dynamite was taped last night would have given the bomb sufficient weight to have crashed through a window, Duncan pointed out. He said Burt as well as the others would be questioned in connection with each of the bombings and fires.

In addition to the Oct. 7 blast, a bombing was reported April 5 at 572 Simmons St., NW. Police said fires were set April 1 at 572 Cairo St., again April 2 at the same address, April 3 at 635 Simmons St., April 5 at 645 Simmons St., April 26 at 656 Simmons St., and Aug. 22 at 635 and 645 Simmons St.

Students of the instrument in the audience were impressed with the neo-classic "Concert Duo" composed by Busoni in the Mozartian style—which, as Dr. Hodgson pointed out, sounded more like Mozart than Mozart himself.

Satie's "Disagreeable Sketches" and Poulenc's "Sonata" with Saint-Saens' "Minuet and Gavotte" and "Scherzo" completed the program, first in a winter series at the downtown Atlanta university and dedicated to Steinway & Sons, now celebrating their centennial year as manufacturers of pianos.

Both played Steinways. Wednesday the Virtuosi di Roma will play at 8:30 p.m. at the Woman's Club Auditorium, opening the Atlanta Music Club membership series (you have to be a member to get tickets). The Decatur Piano Ensemble—20 ladies at 10 pianos—will be heard in concert at 8 p.m. Thursday at O'Keefe High School.

Killed Call Girl in Row, Chinese Cafeman Says

NEW YORK, Oct. 12 (AP)—A 34-year-old Chinese tonight confessed the "torso murder" of Florence Pearl Gibbons and admitted he carved her body into six pieces with a steak knife, detectives reported.

Police said James Lew, restaurant employee who entered the United States 10 years ago, admitted slaying the narcotics addict call girl after an argument Friday night over another man.

Her torso was found at 2 a.m. Sunday stuffed into a suitcase lying on a sidewalk just outside the Morningside Heights campus of Columbia University.

Detectives quoted Lew as saying he argued with the red-haired, blue-eyed woman over a man with whom she had registered as man and wife in an uptown boarding house. She slapped him twice and told him never to talk about the man like that again, officers said. Lew said he became angry the second time she hit him, and attacked her with the steak knife.

Newspaper Vigor Urged By Biggers

CHARLESTON, S. C., Oct. 12.

—Newspapers, to remain the mass news medium, must be well written, properly delivered and priced right, Southern circulation managers were told here today.

George C. Biggers, president of Atlanta Newspapers, Inc., and president of the American Newspaper Publishers Assn., addressed the 34th annual convention of the Mid-Atlantic Circulation Managers Assn. He spoke at a luncheon at the Francis Marion Hotel, headquarters for the convention.

The circulation managers, from the two Carolinas and Virginia, will adjourn tomorrow afternoon after electing officers. The convention opened Sunday afternoon with nearly 100 delegates registered.

GROWTH OF TV

Referring to the growth of television and its competition for the advertising dollar and the public's attention, Biggers said radio and television fill places in the scheme of things.

"They beat us to the people with spot news," he said, "and they furnish fine entertainment and amusement. But newspapers have their place in the sun and can keep it with a vigorous outlook on life that refuses to be satisfied."

"We must print better papers, deliver them when the reader wants them and at a price that even the lowest income brackets can afford to pay. We must produce a product that no one can afford to be without."

'KEEP PACE'

Biggers urged the managers to try to have their papers keep pace with progress of education among the American people. He commented also that a great strength of newspapers is in the fact that they carry the bulk of local advertising.

The managers also heard a report by Arthur Daniel, circulation director of Atlanta Newspapers, Inc. Daniel, president of the International Circulation Managers Assn., reported on activities of that organization, parent group of the Mid-Atlantic association.

Tomorrow the convention will be addressed by R. P. Schlabach Jr., dean of the School of Journalism of the University of South Carolina. The circulation men will elect officers tomorrow afternoon and will adjourn following a banquet and dance tomorrow night.

Navy Cross Awarded to Ga. Marine

A Woodville Marine captain, who went to the rescue of his company's beleaguered outpost in Korea, has been awarded the Navy's highest decoration—the Navy Cross—for restoring a strong defense and halting the enemy.

Capt. C. Griffin Moody Jr., a 1945 graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy, in command of a First Marine Division company, was sitting at his observation post during a fierce night attack when the outpost was surrounded.

Moving to the main line of resistance, in face of heavy fire, the Greene County quickly restored the integrity of the line, rallied two engaged platoons, and remained in command until friendly forces gained fire superiority, the citation read.

"Organizing a reinforced squad, he courageously led the unit forward through heavy enemy artillery, mortar and small arms fire to the surrounded command post.

"Finding the entire defending force to be casualties, he skillfully directed their evacuation and maintained effective supporting arms fire to halt the advance of the hostile force, re-establishing a strong defense of the position."

The Navy Cross was presented recently at a ceremony at the 12th Infantry Battalion in Pittsburgh, Pa., where the captain is in charge of Marine Corps Officer Procurement. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Moody Sr., were present for the ceremony.

"This medal was earned by efforts of every man in our company," the captain commented on the action of that August night of 1952, "and I will be wearing it for all of them."

Captain Moody was graduated from the Greensboro High School and attended the University of Georgia before his appointment to Annapolis.

Wins Tenth Award

Marine Capt. Bobby D. Camp of 506 Coventry Road, Decatur, has been awarded a gold cluster in lieu of the 10th Air Medal for meritorious action against the enemy in Korea. . . . M. Sgt. Lee R. Schima of 481 Peoples St., S.W., was presented the Third Army's Certificate of Achievement on his retirement after 22 years of service. Formerly with the Georgia Military district, Schima has joined the credit department of the First National Bank.

MOTHER AND DAUGHTER ARE CAMP FIRE GIRLS
Mrs. E. M. Durham and Harriet

Mom, Harriet Are 'Friends Together' in Camp Fire Girls

By MARJORY SMITH

Harriet Durham is proud of her mother. "Mother's a Camp Fire Girl, too," the 11-year-old Atlanta youngster confided. "She leads my group. Our group is named 'Shutaki'—that means 'friends together'."

All over Greater Atlanta 4,609 girls between the ages of 7 and 18 are finding out how much fun it is to be "friends together" through the Camp Fire Girls, Red Feather organization supported by Community Chest funds.

Harriet and her mother, Mrs. E. M. Durham, of 124 Faith Ave., S.E., are not only hoping that this year's chest drive goes over the top—they're helping.

The pair are working side by side as volunteers in Community Chest headquarters during the 1953 campaign.

"We've both found out how much the Camp Fire Girls' organization means," Mrs. Durham declared. "It's more far-reaching than the supervised recreation and group work in crafts. Being a Camp Fire Girl helps a youngster learn the give and take she needs in life, shows her how wholesome activities and friendship can enrich her world."

Harriet has been a Trail Seeker, first phase in the Camp Fire Girls' setup for a year. She and her mother enjoy camping trips with their group. Harriet attended Camp Toccoa during the summer.

Harriet and youngsters like her would not have the joys and responsibilities of being a Camp Fire Girl if some of those Community Chest dollars were not directed toward this Red Feather agency. Your gift to this year's chest drive will help keep the "friends together."

Ex-Atlantan Honored

Gerald G. Hannah of Oliver Springs, Tenn., a former resident of Atlanta, has been appointed a colonel on the staff of Gov. Frank G. Clement of Tennessee.

Hannah, member of the Tennessee State Railroad and Public Utilities Commission, is married to the former Miss Clea Stocks of Atlanta.

Protestants' Membership of 52 Million Leads Combined Rolls of Other U. S. Faiths

More Americans belong to the Protestant churches than to all other faiths combined, according to a survey recently conducted by the National Council of Churches of Christ in the U.S.A. With 52,162,432 members in the various denominations, the Protestant bodies can claim a membership almost double that of the second largest group, the Roman Catholic Church, which has 29,241,580 members in the United States.

New Advice Is Given on Tourniquets

New York Times News Service Special to The Atlanta Constitution
WASHINGTON, Oct. 12—The American Red Cross has changed its recommendations for use of the tourniquet for the control of severe bleeding.

It is no longer suggested that first-aiders apply the tourniquet high on the arm or thigh and loosen it every 15 minutes.

The Red Cross now recommends that the tourniquet be placed close to the wound. Once applied, the Red Cross says, it should not be released no matter how long it has been in place until a physician arrives and directs its removal.

The Red Cross warned that the application of a tourniquet to a limb is a serious step. If the tourniquet is left on too long, the limb may be lost, it said. "Therefore," it said, "a tourniquet should be used only for severe life-threatening hemorrhage, which cannot be controlled by other means."

The change was adopted on the basis of recommendations of the committee on surgery, division of medical sciences of the National Research Council, and were contained in a new supplement to the Red Cross first-aid textbook.

More than 161,884 Protestant clergymen are serving charges, as compared to 15,653 Roman Catholic.

Third largest is the Jewish faith, with 2,577 rabbis serving 5,000,000 members.

The Eastern Orthodox Church has 1,858,585 members and 724 clergymen. The Old Catholic and Polish Catholic Church lists 337,408 members with 285 clergymen serving charges and Buddhists claim 73,000 members in 47 churches.

While 88,000,000 Americans are identified with 252 religious groups, 98 per cent of them belong to 70 bodies.

Of the total number of Protestant churches only 15 have a membership of 1,000,000 or more. The Methodist Church leads with more than 9,000,000, followed by the Southern Baptist Convention with 7,373,000 and the National Baptist Convention, U.S.A., Inc., with 4,467,000.

Others in the top 10 Protestant groups are, in order of their size, the National Baptist Convention of America, the Protestant Episcopal Church, Presbyterian U.S.A., United Lutheran Church in America, International Convention of the Disciples of Christ, Lutheran Church—Missouri Synod and the American Baptist Convention.

No precise comparison is possible between Protestant and Roman Catholic figures. Most Protestant churches enumerate as members only persons who have attained full membership. Roman Catholics regard all baptized persons, including children, as members.

Dudley, Smith Named To Kiwanis Groups

G. Maynard Smith and Charles S. Dudley of Atlanta have been appointed members of Kiwanis International committees, President Donald T. Forsythe announced in Chicago.

Smith has been named to the resolutions committee, and Dudley has been appointed to the committee on permanent home.

The mule deer is so called because its ears resemble those of a mule.
